No More Gold Standard.
440 Miles An Hour.
A Prayer to Thieves.
She Ate in the White House.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN SPITE of Europe's frantic denunciation of our gold standard abandonment, and the loud roaring of American best financial minds, gold, as a monetary standard, is overboard.

The Senate has voted, 48 to 20, that any kind of legal tender, approved by government, may hereafter be used to settle public or private debts.

OUR DOLLAR was so expensive that other nations with cheaper money could not afford to buy goods from us, and that suited Europe, which got the business, and, while owing billions to this country, drew out millions in gold from Washington.

That, thanks to President Roosevelt, has come to an end for the present. Senator Reed denounces the Senate's action as "repudiation bringing shame to Americans."

If it be repudiation, which it is not, we can say that our dear friends abroad set the example, welching on billions of borrowed money, payable in gold.

Had we got the gold due us, we should now have all the gold in the world.

As for "bringing shame to Americans," that is bosh, and if abandonment of gold brings prosperity, by making money more plentiful, the country will endure criticism, philosophically.

FRANCESCO ANGELO, well named, an Italian naval officer, who established a new flying speed record of four hundred and twenty-six and a half miles per hour, in April, now announces a new record of [illegible] miles, made in his "Red Bullet." The new record is not official, but will doubtless be established.

England holds the automobile speed record, Italy the more important air record; this proud nation seems to be lagging behind. In other countries government interests itself in air speed records, knowing that, in war, speed in the air would be everything.

SENOR VINCENTE MURILL GONZALES, of Managua, Nicaragua, is not rich, and when thieves robbed him, "leaving me with only the suit I have on," he issued a newspaper front page advertisement, the first businesslike appeal to thieves on record.

"Prayer to the thieves in Managua: I earnestly request the thieves of Managua that they do not steal from the poor like me.

"If the thieves steal from the poor these will have to become thieves also, and the thieves' business will be ruined in the end."

MRS. PATTIE WILLIS SOUTH, 81 years old, of Nicholasville, Ky., always wanted to eat one meal in the White House "to compare the President's cooking with my own." Mrs. South, called "Ma" South, ran a hotel for many years.

Mrs. Roosevelt invited her. "Ma" South wished she could have taken the White House bill of fare for a souvenir and told reporters that having been invited to the White House, "now my aim is to get into Heaven."

In Heaven she will meet many that have never eaten in the White House and will have interesting things to tell them, through all eternity.

A REMARKABLE lady is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, remarkable for energy, kindness and good judgment. Planning a trip to California, to visit her son, she was advised to fly by day and rest at night. She decided to fly day AND night to save time.

In this saving of time, and in her constant travel by airplane, Mrs. Roosevelt sets an example of greatest value to the nation's air industry.

SPAIN'S GOVERNMENT is worried, lest a popular uprising follow the Vatican's denunciation of government seizure of church property, interference with public education, by the church, and keeping an "odious watch" on the church.

The Vatican's condemnation of Spain's government, according to dispatches from Rome, equivalent to excommunication of Spain's present Republican rulers, a most serious matter, in a Catholic country, will provoke intense indignation among populations that are still, by a large majority, deeply Catholic.

Church authorities in Spain, while advocating no action in opposition to any law, have forbidden parents to send children to the Republican public schools.

KING GEORGE of England celebrates his sixty-eighth birthday with crowds cheering 'round his palace. Rheumatism prevented his taking part in the brilliant ceremony of "trooping the colors," but he appeared, with the queen on a balcony of the palace and applause drowned the music of the military band. The Bible says:

"Seest thou a man, diligent in his business, he shall stand before kings."

You may add:

"Seest thou a king, diligent in his business, he shall stand before men and not fear any of them."

King George has been diligent, conscientious, sincere in his business. No wonder his people like him.

RAIL CHIEF GRILLED BY PECORA

Vast Transportation Empire Started on Borrowed Cash

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—Members of the Senate committee investigating J. P. Morgan & Co. said they were told in executive session today by Ferdinand Pecora that Thomas S. Lamont, young partner in the banking firm, sold stock to his wife which he later rebought in connection with his income tax return for 1930, but that the committee counsel did not claim it was illegal.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—Advance of the Van Sweringen railroad holdings from $2,000,000 borrowed in 1916 to the vast expanse now held was chronicled today in the Senate investigation of O. P. Van Sweringen.

Prodded by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, the Cleveland operator traced the entrance of himself and his brother, M. J., into the rail field to a deal by which they got entree into the Nickel Plate 17 years ago.

MONEY BORROWED

It developed that the entire down payment of $2,000,000 of the $8,500,000 price agreed upon was borrowed.

At the start, the witness in a prepared statement, sketched acquisition of his varied transport interests, showing the big part taken by the Morgan bank.

Repeatedly Morgan advised the brothers, they going to him—O. P. testified—because they looked upon the firm "as does the world as wise counsellors in matters of finance."

Objections by John W. Davis, as Morgan counsel, in a closed committee session before the hearing, made for postponement until tomorrow of a decision whether to inquire into the personal income tax returns of three partners in the huge bank, Thomas S. Lamont, William Ewing and Harold Stanley.

The vote against deciding at once was 10 to 2.

Members of the committee said Davis raised the point that the

MIRIAM HOSTETTER YOUNG

HEIRESS BEATEN PLAYBOY HELD

RENO, Nev., June 5.—(INS.)—Eugene Bowen, New York playboy and broker, looked out on this gay divorce town from behind the bars of Reno's dingy jail.

Jewelry worth $20,000 was in the hands of Police Chief John M. Kirkley.

Mrs. Miriam V. Hostetter Young, socially prominent in New York and Pittsburgh, is still "black and blue."

This was how matters stood as the aftermath of what police charge was a heated dispute in a fashionable divorce hotel.

Bowen, lacking $250 bail, was held charged with beating Mrs. Young, heiress to the Hostetter patent medicine fortune and the daughter of Mrs. Herbert Hostetter, of Pasadena, Cal.

Bowen's trial was set for today.

Police Chief Kirkley said he recovered the jewelry, which belongs to Mrs. Young, from a Reno speakeasy. Mrs. Young told Kirkley the gems disappeared after Bowen assertedly trounced her.

REED FIRM'S TAX CLIENTS SIFTED

House to Begin Its Probe of McFadden Charges

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—An investigation is to be opened tomorrow by the House Ways and Means Committee with a view to ascertaining the clients of the firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, of Pittsburgh, Pa., A representative of the Treasury has been summoned to testify.

The firm is headed by Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania. The action was taken on the basis of a resolution introduced by Representative McFadden (Rep.), Pennsylvania, calling upon the Treasury or the Internal Revenue Bureau to furnish the House with information in connection with the settlement or other adjustment of income taxes from 1920 on by the Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay firm.

Senator David A. Reed has said he has no objection to publication of the list of his law firm colleagues' tax case clients. Representative McFadden's resolution was interpreted as an effort to show Reed profited as a member of the firm that handled tax cases laid before the Treasury Department.

Partners in Reed, Smith, Shaw and McClay denied that firm shared in the profits of Smith, Shaw, McClay and Seifert. The latter firm was formed when Senator Reed entered the United States Senate and since has handled all tax cases in the office, according to John S. Frazer, of Reed, Smith, Shaw and McClay.

1,000 NAMED AS HOARDERS

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—Attorney General Cummings said today he had transmitted to the field offices of the Bureau of Investigation more than 1,000 names of suspected gold hoarders with a view to compelling compliance with President Roosevelt's order that all gold or gold certificates above $100 be returned to the Treasury.

At the same time the Attorney General denounced those who are still holding their gold as "recalcitrant citizens who are not doing their fully duty to their country."

The names which are now being investigated were the first sent to the Department of Justice by the Treasury Department which had compiled them from reports of banks over the country.

Mrs. William K. Dick Seeks Reno Divorce

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP.)—The American says the socially prominent Mrs. William K. Dick, who married her childhood sweetheart after her first husband, John Jacob Astor, was lost on the Titanic, has gone to Nevada to seek a divorce on the ground of incompatibility.

Mrs. Dick, the former Madeleine T. Force, married her second husband in 1916. They have two children, William, Jr., and J. H. Dick. Mr. and Mrs. Dick have been living apart recently.

ROOSEVELT AIDE HIT IN VET REVOLT

Senator Scores Howe For Participating In Controversy

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—The Senate Finance Committee today adopted the Harrison tax program to finance the $3,300,000,000 public works project in the industrial recovery bill. It eliminates the House increases of tax rates on small incomes.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—A sharp criticism of Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, for appealing to the people to stand with the administration in slashing veterans' benefits, was loosed on the Senate floor today by Senator Cutting (Rep.), New Mexico, a Roosevelt supporter.

Cutting took the floor to assail Howe's address last night just after Senator Robinson (Rep.), Indiana, had attack President Roosevelt's demand that the Senate back down on its restoration of $170,000,000 in veterans' payments or raise taxes.

With the remark that he wanted to call the attention of the Senate "a great breach of propriety on the part of the White House secretariat," Cutting referred to two newspaper articles in front of him, one linking Howe with the purchase of reforestation workers' kits and the other quoting his address.

HOWE ASSAILED

In the address, Cutting said, Howe told the country that the veterans' benefits would mean a tax of $1.25 on each person in the country. Cutting continued:

"The office of presidential secretary is one unknown to the constitution. The President's secretary is not responsible to anybody except the President.

"I do not remember any analogy in which the President's secretary has used his position to appeal to the people on a controversy on which Congress has reached a contrary view.

"It is a grave question as to whether the co-ordinate branches of the government should appeal to the people against other. That is a broad question, but for the moment, it is not the duty of a secretary, clerk or stenographer to present it to us."

Howe will be heard again tomorrow by the Senate Military Committee in its inquiry into the purchase of the 200,000 toilet kits at prices the Army claims were excessive.

CALLED TO TESTIFY

Chairman Sheppard (Dem.) of Texas, said committee members had decided to hear Howe, the budget director, Lewis Douglas, and F. W. Lowery, Douglas' assistant tomorrow in an effort to clear up apparently conflicting points in previous testimony.

Meanwhile House leaders will debate at a special meeting tomorrow what action they will take on President Roosevelt's ultimatum that if a limitation is imposed on the amount veterans benefits may be cut new taxation will be necessary to balance the budget.

The conference will be attended by the House Democratic Steering Committee, the Special Veterans Committee and Chairman Buchanan of the Ways and Means Committee.

Globe-Girdling Airman Faces Bad Weather Over Siberia

MOSCOW, June 5.—(AP.)—James Mattern, United States aviator going around the world in a solo flight, landed in Moscow this afternoon, dog tired but "feeling fine."

He was exactly 51 hours and 37 minutes out of New York City. (This put him almost three hours ahead of the Post-Gatty round-the-world flight record he is trying to beat.)

Mattern landed here at 8:57 a. m. Pittsburgh time, swooping down on the muddy field from a sky darkened by angry clouds. He declared he would remain in Moscow two hours and then press on toward Siberia.

After taxiing his ship to a standstill the Texan was gathered up by half a dozen Soviet aviators and tossed into the air several times in quite the most enthusiastic reception ever given an American airman here.

GREETS OLD FRIENDS

Greeting several old friends among the newspaper correspondents he grinned as he declared:

"It seems almost like being back home again."

Surrounded by perhaps 200 airport attaches, he was escorted to the airdrome reception room where officials listened to his wishes concerning gasoline and oil and conveyed to him information on weather conditions and landing facilities east of Moscow.

The weather conditions were not of the best, but Mattern declared he would go on. He ate hungrily of a sumptuous meal which was waiting for him.

An airport doctor intervened to feel Mattern's pulse and, with his fingers still on the aviator's wrist, he said:

"He is very tired and needs rest."

When this was translated to him, Mattern grinned and remarked:

"I feel fine, but I would like to have about an hour's sleep."

Sir Francis Sick, Wife Makes Address

SWARTHMORE, Pa., June 5.—(AP.)—Stricken ill a few hours before the start of the commencement exercises at Swarthmore College, Sir Francis Wylie, former Oxford secretary to the Rhodes trustees in England, was unable to deliver the commencement address today.

His wife, Lady Wylie, delivered the address prepared by him, and accepted for him an honorary degree.

No diagnosis of the English educator's illness was announced.

SENTENCE WIFE, FREE MOTHER

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 5.—Refusing to enter a plea of not guilty, in order to shield her daughter, Mrs. Minnie Wroe, 60, collapsed when a jury freed her and convicted the daughter of voluntary manslaughter. The daughter, Emma Brooks, 21, was sent to the State Industrial School for Women at Muncey, for the fatal shooting of her husband, John A. Brooks, 25, in the Wroe home last New Year's eve.

Since the shooting both mother and daughter maintained they fired the fatal shot.

When Mrs. Wroe refused to plead not guilty today, Judge S. John Morrow ordered a not guilty plea and then began testimony to determine the degree of guilt.

It was testified there was a fight between Brooks and his estranged wife and two shots were fired. After the testimony the court directed the jury to find Mrs. Brooks guilty of voluntary manslaughter and free her mother.

JOBLESS MARCH ON FORD PLANT

DETROIT, June 5.—(INS.)—A small army of police was thrown around the Ford Motor Company's Rouge plant today as thousands of unemployed gathered at the border of Dearborn for a "hunger march" into the suburb.

The last "hunger march" against the fortress-like Rouge plant a year ago resulted in a battle that claimed four lives.

Four hundred Detroit police reserves were mobilized to escort the parade as far as the city limits. The marchers had permits to parade in Detroit streets, but Dearborn police announced suburban permits had been refused.

LANSING, Mich., June 5.—(INS.)—Forty state troopers were dispatched today to the Ford River Rouge plant where unemployed were threatening a "hunger march" in defiance of police.

Whistle a Tune, Woodin Advised by Roosevelt

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 5.—(AP.)—America, "unafraid and invincible," needs music now more than ever, to stimulate courage, said William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury in President Roosevelt's cabinet, speaking at the sixty-second anual commencement at Syracuse University. Dwelling for a moment on things finincial, he said:

"Fear, far more than any other thing, has been responsible for the failure of financial institutions."

Upon his arrival, Mr. Woodin was asked about rumors that he might resign. He said:

"I don't mind that a bit. I'm used to being asked that, but I have no statement to make."

Later he amplified this:

"As I was leaving the President's room—he knew I was coming up here—he said: 'Will, you can tell them for me that when I get myself in trouble, I always whistle a tune.'"

The university awarded Mr. Woodin an honorary degree of doctor of music.

Mattern Tells Own Story Of Perils on Flight

MOSCOW, June 5.—Sacrificing much-needed sleep to swap yarns in the administration building of October Airport, James Mattern, Texas airman burning up the skyways on a solo flight around the world, today told the story of the hardships he encountered in spanning the Atlantic from New York to Norway.

Still begrimed from his flight to Moscow from Oslo, Mattern waved away the solicitous airport officials who wanted him to go to bed, and told what it feels like to set a new long-distance solo record law does not permit publication of income tax returns.

VAN SWERINGEN RAIL EMPIRE BUILT ON BORROWED CASH

It was this question that the committee decided to study.

'O. P.' FIRST WITNESS

O. P. Van Sweringen was the first witness. He was permitted to read a statement outlining operations of the Alleghany Corporation.

Round faced, clean shaven and sturdily built, the witness seemed entirely at his ease.

In a deliberate voice, he read steadily before questioning began.

Morgan & Co. aided the Van Sweringens in the financing of the railroad holding company and bought a large quantity of Alleghany company stock. A part of this was sold to favored customers, many prominent men among them, at cost.

Shortly thereafter, the stock was selling at prices which permitted millions in paper profit to those who bought from Morgan.

Morgan looked over a copy of Van Sweringen's statement.

Van Sweringen emphasized his reading with mild gestures and smiled when he mentioned the Chesapeake and Ohio and its coal haulage.

He said the statement gave an outline of the "purpose" of the Alleghany Corporation. As he completed the statement, Pecora asked:

"You formed the Alleghany Corporation to acquire control or part control, of various railroad lines?"

Van Swearingen said:

"That was its purpose, I think."

"You invaded the railroad field in 1916?"

"Yes."

"Through purchase of the Nickel Plate?"

"Yes, we bought into the Nickel Plate."

"Who was associated with you in this venture?"

"My brother, C. R. Bradley, J. R. Nutt and quite a few others."

WROTE OWN STATEMENT

Pecora then asked a series of questions as to who wrote his opening statement and who aided.

Van Sweringen answered in a low voice. He leaned back in his chair at the end of almost every reply.

He said he drew the statement, that several in his office aided in framing it and that no one in Morgan & Co. had anything to do with it. Pecora asked:

"Did you submit a copy to them (J. P. Morgan & Co.)?"

"I outlined it in a casual way to Mr. Arthur M. Anderson on the telephone."

Repeatedly, the witness conferred with counsel and aides, until Pecora said:

"Do you find it necessary to confer with any one?"

Van Sweringen replied:

"I only had a subpena to be here myself. I had no knowledge of what was wanted. I can't carry the details of years in my head."

The railroad builder testified he and his associates in 1916 paid $8,500,000 for their original interest in the Nickel Plate, cash $2,000,000 with the balance deferred.

In return, he, his brother and other associates, including J. R. Nutt, now treasurer of the Republican National Committee, obtained 25,032 shares of first preferred stock in the road; 62,750 of second preferred, and 62,400 of common.

"Did you borrow $2,000,000 to pay the cash?"

Van Swearingen said as he recalled the money was provided by the formation of the Nickel Plate Securities Corporation and the sale of the stock.

"Did you get a loan of $2,000,000 from the Guardian Savings and Trust Company of Cleveland?"

"We got an interim loan from that bank while the Securities Corporation was being formed."

ALL MONEY BORROWED

Pecora asked:

"Then you borrowed all the money to make that $2,000,000 payment to the New York Central?"

Van Sweringen replied:

"For the moment."

"How was this repaid?"

"Through the sale of the stock in the Nickel Plate Securities Corporation."

Only Fletcher and Adams remained at the table, as Pecora dragged from Van Sweringen the details of the operation.

Both Pecora and Van Sweringen were consulting for details of the transaction the data gathered by the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

Pecora pursued his questioning with his usual methodical persistence, tracing every step and oftentimes asking a question in several different ways.

This apparently held little interest for the spectators. There were frequent yawns, but the listeners remained.

It was testified that the Nickel Plate Securities Corporation was formed in December, 1916, and that the Nickel Plate Securities had additional assets in the form of the Cleveland, Youngstown Railroad and some real estate.

These and the New York Central stock were pledged by the Van Sweringens for the capital stock of the Securities corporation.

Common stock of the corporation had a par value of $12,500,000.

Van Sweringen Details Morgan Aid in Deals

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—O. P. Van Sweringen, sketching tersely for Senate investigators the creation of the great railroad empire which he and his brother, M. J., put together, today gave a glimpse of J. P. Morgan & Co.'s role in their rocket-like rise.

To the Morgan house went the Van Sweringens for financing and advice time and again. They regarded the banking firm, he said, "as does the world, wise counsellors in matters of finance."

Once they accepted a Morgan caution, and postponed acquisition of big interests in the Chesapeake and Ohio, now their most prosperous and successful road.

PREPARED STATEMENT

This story was unfolded in a prepared statement laid before the Banking Committee as it called on Van Sweringen in the Morgan investigation to uncover facts in the latter's financing of the Alleghany Corporation, greatest of Van Sweringen rail holding companies.

The story the railroad man told began with the Van Sweringens' acquisition of the Nickel Plate because "in connection with an undertaking to provide rapid transit to some portions of Cleveland, we wanted to use a part of the Nickel Plate."

Having bought the road the brothers decided "to make the most of it." The move for rail consolidation was under way by 1920. The Van Sweringens thought fast, figured there should be four eastern rail systems, started to consolidate one.

In 1922 they purchased stock control of the Toledo, St. Louis and Western and the Lake Erie and Western, consolidating them with Nickel Plate. Along came the chance to acquire a major interest in the Chesapeake and Ohio. The Morgans "felt it wasn't the time for us to make the expenditures. We were going to have to have some money. We took their advice . . ."

But "a year or so" later the Van Sweringens were back at 23 Wall street:

"This time the Morgan firm agreed with us and we closed the deal, the Nickel Plate buying 70,000 of the Huntington shares, the total of which was 73,000."

ABOVE MARKET PRICE

They had to pay more than the market so the Nickel Plate bought only a portion of the shares, the Van Sweringens with associates personally holding the rest, themselves paying all that had to be paid above the market price for the entire 70,000. This block was not control so they went after more. The road was in difficulties, but they believed they could put it on its feet.

"When we went into the management of it, we conferred with Morgan & Co. as to those improvements we felt should be made, and through their aid financed a large purchase of new equipment. We were correct in our belief. It is the one railroad that has earned and paid its full dividend throughout the period of this depression."

"We were on our way," observed Van Sweringen at this point, going on to tell how they then eyed the Erie Railroad, and won the co-operation of the late George F. Baker, so that together they wound up with half the common and much of the Erie's preferred.

They needed new outlets for coal, so bought into the Pere Marquette. It was 1925, and the brothers went to the I. C. C. with their first plan for the Nickel Plate unification.

The plan was rejected, but since the I. C. C. regarded the C. & O. as logical backbone of their systems they built a link through Ohio to give it a continuous line from Newport News, Va., to Toledo.

Here appeared the first of the holding companies. C. & O. was to be now the nucleus of the consolidation and Nickel Plate was a big stock owner in its prospective parent. To change this and still keep the Nickel Plate's C. & O. shares in the group, Chesapeake Corporation was created and its shares exchanged for the C. & O.'s Nickel Plate. The Van Sweringen's own C. & O. holdings went into the pot "upon the same basis."

This took money:

"Chesapeake Corporation went to J. P. Morgan & Co. for this financial aid, and realized it by the sale to them in the spring of 1927 of $48,000,000 of 20-year 5 per cent bonds."

The C. & O. asked then for I. C. C. permission to acquire control of the Erie and Pere Marquette; was granted the latter but not the Erie. The Van Sweringens, faced then with need for some manner of holding in unified fashion all the interests they had acquired for formation of the fourth system of the rail consolidation plan, in 1929 brought into being Alleghany Corporation, the immediate objective of the present investigation.

HOLDINGS PUT UP

Into it they put their holdings, he said, taking common stock only in exchange. Here Van Sweringen's statement made no reference to the Morgans, no mention of the flotation which already has figured in the investigation through distribution of Alleghany shares at cost to a Mogan selected list of customers.

He pointed out that in 1932 the I. C. C. handed down a four-system consolidation plan coinciding with their structure and added:

"We are still expecting to get these railroads together, physically and financially speaking, in spite of the many difficulties we have encountered."

CADMAN HITS MORGAN QUIZ

Use of big men "for umbrellas to keep the showers off ourselves" was condemned by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, nationally prominent minister, referring to the House of Morgan and other banker investigations during a stopover here today en route to Alliance, O.

The average citizen must investigate himself, Dr. Cadman inferred during an interview. The average politician is as honest as the average businessman, he said. It is the dishonest businessman who makes the dishonest politician, according to Dr. Cadman.

While a return to better business is seen, he said it was hoped there would be no wild dance in Wall street. Condemning the loss of moral ideals by citizens in grabbing for the "fool's paradise," he said no such prosperity as had held sway was wanted.

SENATE STEEL PROBE ASKED

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—(A.P.)—Senatorial investigation of "Bethlehem and other powerful steel interests" is asked by Mayor Robert Pfeifle, of Bethlehem, "when the Senate gets through with J. P. Morgan & Co."

Mayor Pfeifle made his request yesterday at a meeting of representatives of depositors in closed banks in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

The meeting was called by Frank H. Schrenk, chairman of the newly organized National Depositors Protective Committee, to discuss plans for a gathering of its members in Washington on June 10.

Schrenk said:

"There can be no prosperity so long as 5,000 banks are strangled by impossible regulations, the chief purpose of which is to put them out of business."

The committee's program calls for immediate lifting of restrictions from the banks involved and payment of 60 per cent of all unpaid deposits in closed banks.

HARRIMAN, AIDE DENY GUILT

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP.)—Joseph W. Harriman, former chairman of the board of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, pleaded not guilty in Federal Court today to an indictment charging mismanagement of the institution's funds.

Albert M. Austin, vice president of the bank, also pleaded not guilty.

Harriman appeared almost completely recovered from stab wounds he inflicted 15 days ago in a suicide attempt.

The elderly banker's bail was permitted to stand at $25,000, the amount fixed upon his arraignment under the original indictment which charged him only with causing false entries, and Austin was ordered to post a $5,000 bond.

The indictment on which the two entered pleas today were returned last Friday and charged the making of 14 false entries in the bank's books; the abstraction of securitits amounting to $300,000 in value from the bank, and the obtaining by Harriman of $300,000 loaned on a note to a depositor who turned the proceeds over to the leading defendant.

TRIED TO STEM SLUMP, SAYS MITCHELL

Banker Charged With Tax Evasion Goes On Stand

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP.)—Charles E. Mitchell testified at his income tax evasion trial today that in 1929 he tried to prevent the stock market crash by throwing his personal resources into the market.

He told of returning from a trip abroad during a strong market to learn that the stock of National City Bank, which he headed, was weakening and that the National City Company was loading up with it to cushion its fall.

He said he was astounded and held a conference with his associates. He said:

"I told them that the compaid had reached its limit in the purchase of National City Bank stock. A big drop in the stock, I said, would have a disastrous effect on the market.. I told them I thought some one must let that market down in an orderly fashion and that I was ready to use my personal resources to do so."

Mitchell said he then went to the Morgans, told them what he wanted to do, and they agreed to lend him money. He then made formal application to the Morgans for a loan up to $12,000,000 and posted 30,000 shares of his own stock as collateral.

It is part of that 30,000 shares which Mitchell later sold to his wife to record a personal loss and so avoid income tax payment in 1929. The government charges it was a fake sale, that Mrs. Mitchell did not have the money to ay for the stock, and that the Morgans were not informed of the transfer.

Mitchell was the second person called as the defense began today. The first was his wife, Mrs. Mitchell was not allowed by the court to testify either for or against her husband.

HOUSE PASSES RAILROAD BILL

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—The administration's railroad reorganization bill was approved by the House today while the Senate started debate on another of President Roosevelt's big emergency measures, legislation to refinance mortgages on small homes.

The railroad bill, creating a federal co-ordinator to aid the carriers in getting back to a sound working basis, will be sent back to the Senate for adjustment of differences on minor amendments before going to the White House.

The measure places holding companies under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission and repeals the recapture clause of the 1920 transportation act, thus cancelling $361,000,000 in government claims against carriers for excess profits.

The bill protects labor by preventing the discharge by railroads of any employes through consolidations or eliminations of services or terminal facilities.

STORM DAMAGE HERE SLIGHT

Although many parts of the Pittsburgh district were swept by a severe rain and electrical storm early last night, the damage in Allegheny County was comparatively slight, a survey revealed today.

Lightning disabled the police and fire alarm system in the West End, the boxes being out of order more than six hours. During the time the fire alarm system was disabled a still alarm was sent to West End companies summoning firemen to a shed of the Seven Baker Brothers, Woodville avenue. The fire, of undetermined origin, caused a loss estimated at $500.

A tree was felled on the grounds of the Pittsburgh Hospital.

A barn on the Ziegler farm on Tom's Run road, near Carnegie, burned after being struck by lightning. Lightning struck a high tension wire at Avon and Jefferson drives, Mt. Lebanon.

GALE HITS FAIR, 60,000 FLEE

CHICAGO, June 5.—(INS.)—A 70 - mile - an - hour gale which whipped across the city and centered its fury at the Century of Progress Exposition grounds today left thousands of dollars' damage in its wake and a score of persons injured.

The gale did $10,000 damags to the World's Fair buildings last night and sent 60,000 persons scurrying for cover on the grounds.

When the gale struck with sudden force 85 persons were on the open air platform of Thesky Ride Tower, 628 feet above the ground. As the huge steel tower swayed 18 inches with the wind the terrorized crowd shrieked:

"We're falling."

Two women attempted to leap, but were restrained by guards.

ILLINOIS POLLS HEAVY VOTE ON REPEAL

Balloting Expected To Influence Result In Indiana

CHICAGO, June 5.—(AP.)—Early returns in Illinois vote on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment indicated a heavy turnout today. Cook County (Chicago) election commissioners predicted a record vote of 720,000 in the metropolitan area.

Bright sunshine after a heavy rain storm last night, the significance of the repeal question and a long judicial ballot combined to keep the polls crowded.

NINTH TO ACT

Illinois which has twice disapproved of state prohibition became the ninth state to vote on the Twenty-first amendment. Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Wyoming, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Nevada already have voted for the repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The state's decision on prohibition was watched with interest by its neighbor, Indiana, which writes its verdict on the same subject tomorrow.

Party lines were erased in the balloting with the force of Republicans and Democrats behind a slate of 50 wet delegates which, if victorious, will attend a state convention at Springfield, July 10, to vote on the Twenty-first Amendment. Up for election were 79 higher court judges, including five of the seven justices of the State Supreme Court.

VOTE TOMORROW

INDIANAPOLIS, June 5.—(AP.)—Still hopeful the voters may be aroused from their lethargy, wets and drys today made plans to carry through their efforts to get the electorate to the polls tomorrow to ballot at the special election.

The voters will elect 320 delegates who will assemble here June 26 to register formally the Hoosier State's stand on the Twenty-first Amendment providing for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—A promise of help in North Carolina's repeal fight by the National Democratic organization was reported last night by Johnston Avery as the result of a conference with Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Avery, secretary to Senator Robert Reynolds, North Carolina repeal move leader, said the question of funds was not touched upon specifically, but he believed from Farley's answer to a request for "co-operation" that money might be forthcoming.

Weather Conditions.

Low pressure is dominating the weather over most of the country this morning, with centers over the lower St. Lawrence Valley, over Saskatchewan, and over Arizona. As a result of the low pressure over the northern states, showers and thunderstorms were quite general yesterday afternoon and last night over the Middle Atlantic States, and westward over the Ohio Valley states, the Lake Region, and the northern plains, and there is considerable cloudiness over those sections this morning. High pressure is centered over the Gulf of Mexico, and off the Washington and Oregon coast. Temperature changes were slight, but towards warmer, generally, over the Ohio Valley states.

River Conditions.

Showers were general over the Pittsburgh river district. At several points rainfall was sufficiently heavy to start a slight rise in the rivers. Stage at Franklin is 2.8 and Lock No. 7, Mon., 12.9; Pittsburgh, 11.9; Dam No. 4, 9.7; No. 8, 9.1; No. 10, 9.8; and No. 12, 10.7. The dams are up. The rivers will change but little.

PECORA'S BACK AGAINST WALL

By EDWIN C. HILL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The most mysterious and elusive personality among the railroad overlords of America—among all the dukes and earls of high finance—a figure far removed, elusive and unapproachable, even than John Pierpont Morgan—was hailed to the witness stand of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee this afternoon.

Oris P. Van Sweringen, who with his brother, Mattis J., dominates the Van Sweringen system of railroads—the C. & O., the Erie, the Nickel Plate, the Missouri Pacific and other lines—and who organized and commands the great railroad security holding companies, Alleghany Corporation and Chesapeake Corporation—was called to the stand by Counsel Pecora of the committee to explain the methods by which the Alleghany Corporation was organized with the assistance of J. P. Morgan & Co. and how its securities were unloaded upon the public at enormous profit—so Pecora asserts—to the Van Sweringens, and the House of Morgan—not to mention the hundreds of "close friends" of the House of Morgan.

'EXCESSIVE POWER'

O. P. Van Sweringen is called for questioning because Pecora believes that the financial set-up of Alleghany Corporation, and the method with which its securities were disposed of, furnishes a perfect instance of the excessive and theoretically dangerous power exerted by such a great private banking concern as J. P. Morgan & Co.

It is Pecora's contention that the opportunities available to such banks as Morgan's and such railroad and promotion experts as the Van Sweringens, almost invariably result in the enrichment of the insiders and the eventual loss of the public.

Van Sweringen's testimony was, therefore, the feature of the day, as Pecora pressed him hard regarding how he and Morgan unloaded millions of dollars worth of bonds and stocks of Alleghany Corporation.

But Van Sweringen was put on the stand only after Pecora met with a setback in the executive committee meeting of the committee. In that meting, with the Morgan lawyer, John W. Davis, as his antagonist, Pecora demanded the right to question Morgan partners regarding their evasion of income tax payments.

He contended that the Senate resolution which authorized the inquiry gives the committee the right to take up the individual operations of the Morgan partners. He charged in the secret session that there had been actual evasion of income tax payments by means of a phenomenally clever device invented by one of the partners.

He argued that Congress and the people had a legal right to go into the whole matter. Lawyer Davis, with the backing of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who sardonically alludes to himself as "junior counsel for the Morgans," fought savagely against Pecora's demand to spread the secret income tax manipulations of Morgan partners upon the record.

BITTER WRANGLE

There was a long and bitter wrangle lasting an hour and a half, in which sharp things were said.

Pecora, deprived of the backing of Senator Couzens, of Michigan, and Senator Costigan, of Colorado, and forced to combat the strangely tender regard manifested by some Senators for the sanctity of the personal operations of the Morgan partners, was forced to accept temporary defeat.

By a 10 to 2 vote the committee voted to postpone until tomorrow the decision as to whether Thomas S. Lamont, William Ewing and Harold Stanley shall be compelled to reveal exactly how they were able to evade income tax payments by means, as is alleged by Pecora, of "wash sales" of stocks.

This afternoon Washington buzzes with the gossip that the obstructionist—the friends of Morgan—are on the point of prevailing and wrecking the whole investigation.

The gossip is that some strange and very powerful influence is being applied to paralyze Pecora's probing fingers. Pecora himself is in a cold rage this afternoon at the position in which he has been put. He is just about ready to blow and call things by their right names.

He is just about ready to go to the people and ask who is really running the country, Congress or J. P. Morgan & Co., and their allies in Washington.

No one not actually present in this dramatic scene can possibly envision the desperate fight that is going on—under the surface—to save the power of the private banking interests of the country and the personal prestige of the men at their head.

Pecora has driven the giant into a corner, but the giant is not beaten yet, and is fighting with all its might and subtilty.

But tomorrow the committee must choose between Morgan and Pecora. That is what it amounts to. Within the next 24 hours they must decide whether they have the "legal" right to go into the individual affairs of the Morgan partners. That, of course, is a handy subterfuge, since the language of the resolution is plain. The committee, in plain English, is "stalling" as they say in less exalted circles.

It hasn't yet summoned up the courage to uphold Pecora on the brass to block further inquiry. It is toe-dancing between the devil and the deep blue sea as Pecora goes savagely after Oris P. Van Sweringen, the man of mystery, to find out where the Van Sweringens got the money to organize their gigantic railroad deals.

DIFFICULT WITNESS

Van Sweringen is an evasive and difficult witness and Pecora lashes at him wickedly. Oris P. is a short, plump gray little man, with a plump, pink, round face, thinning gray hair, shrewd gray eyes behind horn-rimmed specks and a small tight, shrewd mouth.

This is the first time, so far as this writer knows, that he and Brother Mattis has ever been dragged out into the limelight in their financial bee-bee-dees. He is the shyest bird in the financial aviary and all this conspicuity is excessively painful.

So the hearing goes on, with Pecora persistently hammering at Van Sweringen to bring out the true nature of the financial juggling by which he and his brother and the House of Morgan played a gigantic game of railroad poker—strip poker—the buyers of Alleghany common stock being the ones who, eventually, went home in a barrel.

Rockefeller Cash Pays For New Rivera Murals

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP.)—Diego Rivera, noted Mexican painter, who was the central figure in a recent controversy over his murals in Rockefeller Center, announced today that he was starting work on two new murals—one in the New Workers' School and the other in the International Workers' School.

He said he would pay for them with money he received under his contract for the Rockefeller Center murals. Rivera was ordered to stop work on the latter when the Rockefellers objected to the figure of Lenin in a group which was to have topped the paintings. Rivera received $21,000 for the work, $14,000 of which was given to him with a letter telling him to stop work on the murals.

Rivera said the murals in the New Workers' School will be in 10 panels, five representing his conception of the growth of capitalism in the United State and the other five depicting the American revolution. The subject for the murals in the International Workers' School will have to do with the World War.

BIGGER, BETTER AIRSHIPS TO REPLACE AKRON, BRISBANE PLEA

'MA' SNUBBED AT FETE FOR 'FIRST LADY'

No Invitation Given Governor to Attend Dallas Breakfast

DALLAS Tex., June 5.—(INS.)—The bitter political feud of Texas flared up in dramatic fashion here today when Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Governor of Texas, was not invited to breakfast with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the airport here.

Accompanied by her husband, former Gov. James E. Ferguson, Gov. Ferguson had made a special trip by train from Austin to meet the wife of the President.

GO TO HOTEL

The breakfast honoring Mrs. Roosevelt was given by Amon G. Carter, publisher of the Ft. Worth Star Telegram. Carter shook hands with Gov. Ferguson and Jim Ferguson, but did not invite them to the breakfast.

Gov. Ferguson and her husband did not wait for the departure of Mrs. Roosevelt's plane. While the First Lady of the Land was breakfasting with Mr. and Mrs. Carter and others, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson left the airport for a downtown hotel—to eat breakfast.

MAKE NO COMMENT

Gov. Ferguson said she was not asked to breakfast.

She said that the plans for the breakfast were made before she had decided to make the trip here. She said that her only purpose in coming to Dallas was because she felt the First Lady of the Land should be welcomed to the state by the Governor.

James E. Ferguson, for years the stormy petrel of Texas politics, declined to comment on the failure of his wife to receive an invitation to the breakfast. He said:

"We have no comment."

"Where are you going?" he was asked as he seated himself in the car beside his wife.

"To [illegible]."

Mrs. Roosevelt Halts Here On Cross-Country Flight

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, flying as a private citizen and just one of the passengers, stopped at the County Airport yesterday on her trip to the West Coast.

Bound for a visit to her son, Elliott, in Los Angeles, she is making the first cross-continental air trip ever made by a President's wife.

The ever-affable and gracious First Lady of the Land was greeted by an eager crowd of 500, who shouted and cheered as she walked to the administration building with Hal Bazley, airport manager.

Patricia Bracken, of 3230 Wainbell avenue, Dormont, was the only autograph seeker to reach Mrs. Roosevelt. She signed her name on a white card as:

"Eleanor Roosevelt."

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 5.—(INS.)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, en route to Tucson to meet her son, Elliott, passed through Fort Worth the second time today following a brief visit to Dallas.

The special plane landed at 10:04 a. m. and took off a few minutes later.

Drank in Insane Grief For Lost Love, Poe Wrote

Display of Letters Of Great Reveals Tragedy, Humor

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Out of a collection of written heart-throbs now being exhibited by the Rosenbach Company has come a magnificent letter, heretofore, unpublished from Edgar Allen Poe. It was written by Poe to his friend George Eveleth in answer to his query:

"Can you hint to me what was the terrible evil which caused the irregularities so profoundly lamented."

The "irregularities referred to charges that Poe was a drunkard and dope addict.

His answer reveals the secret—the loss of the girl whom he married and of whom he said:

"In the death of what was my life, then, I received a new but—Oh, God! how melancholy an existence. During her illness I became insane, with long intervals of horrible sanity.

"During these fits of absolute unconsciousness I drank, God only knows how much. My enemies referred the insanity to the drink rather than the drink to the insanity."

The letters of Benjamin Franklin to Madame Brillon, written while he was minister to France, are regarded—by collectors—as among the wittiest and most entertaining of all love epistles. He points out to the lady of his heart in one of them:

"People commonly speak of ten commandments—I have been taught there are 12. The first was increase and multiply—the twelfth is, a new commandment I give unto you: That ye love one another. I have always been willing to obey them both whenever I had an opportunity."

Oscar Wilde's love affair with Constance Wilde is traced through the letters she wrote to him. They progressed with amazing rapidity from "Dear Mr. Wilde" to "My Darling Love."

Charles Dickens' earliest love can be completely traced in the 22 letters he wrote to a confidant.

SON DEFYING ALFONSO TO WED CUBAN GIRL

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 5.—(AP.)—The official "promise of marriage" of the Prince of the Astpurias, heir-claimant to the Spanish throne, and Senorita Edelmira Sampedro, daughter of a wealthy Cuban merchant, was posted in the City Hall here today.

The notice, dated June 2, will remain displayed until June 12. Any objections must be made in writing during that period.

The notice reads:

"There is a promise of marriage between Don Alfonso Pio Cristino Eduardo Francisco Guillerme Carlos Enrique Eugenion Fernando Antonino Venancie de Borbon y Battenberg, bachelor of Spanish nationality, resident of Lausanne, born at Madrid May 10, 1907, and Ocejo Edelmira Ignacia Adriana Sampedro, of Cuban nationality, a resident of Lausanne, born at Sagua la Grande, Cuba, March 5, 1906."

The prince had adopted the name of Count Cavadonga and has announced the marriage will take place shortly. He and his bride will reside at Lausanne.

The wedding will climax a story-book romance which began last year when the Prince met the pretty senorita in a sanitarium where he was under treatment for hemophilia. The treatment was largely successful.

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, June 5.—(AP.)—Commenting on the forthcoming wedding of the Prince of the Asturias to Senorita Elmira Sampedro, former King Alfonso's spokesman said today "The King is not happy about the marriage and will not go to the wedding."

Court circles said that although the Prince has not formally renounced his rights to the throne such a marriage was equivalent to a renunciation.

It was understood Queen Victoria, the Prince's mother, will probably attend the ceremony.

CO-ED BATTLES DESPERADO

CHICKASHA, Okla., June 5.—(AP.)—The courage of an Oklahoma A. & M. College co-ed was credited today with a large share in stopping the frenzied cross-state dash of Frank Sawyer, fleeing Kansas convict, near Binger, Caddo County, Sunday.

Sawyer, one of the 11 desperadoes who escaped from the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing Memorial Day, was captured in a gun battle and free-for-all fight after he had kidnaped Bob Goodfellow, Caddo County clerk, and his 20-year-old sister, Lois Goodfellow.

After abducting the Goodfellows, Sawyer ordered the girl, who was driving, to go to Oklahoma City. The co-ed drove the car into a ditch while her brother attempted to seize Sawyer's pistol, but the move failed.

While Sawyer was trying to get the car out of the ditch, with pretended assistance from the Goodfellows, Sheriff Horace Crisp and Deputy Al Marlow of Grady County, drove up. Sawyer seized Goodfellow and opened fire.

Her brother was wounded, but Miss Goodfellow, ignoring the blazing pistols, according to the sheriff, began choking the convict, giving the officers an opportunity to close in.

McArdle Seeks Council Action on Proposal To Stem Terrorism

Councilman P J. McArdle today asked Council to pay $1,000 each to persons supplying information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for nine bombs aimed at Pittsburgh homes, automobiles and a church since January.

Police and other employes of government agencies whose duty it may be to trace the bombers cannot collect the proposed rewards.

McArdle's resolution itemized the nine locations, five of which figured in East End political-racketeering wars. Council referred it to the finance committee, which meets tomorrow.

EDITOR URGES FLIERS STAY IN AIR

Rule Requiring Sea Duty Held to Blame For Disaster

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Immediate construction of "a larger and better ship" to replace the U. S. S. Akron was urged today by Arthur Brisbane, the noted editor and publisher at joint Congressional hearings into the Akron disaster April 4.

Brisbane declared that one dirigible such as the U. S. S. Macon "is worth a dozen battleships."

Only by continuous operation of lighter-than-aircraft can the United States know what is going on in the Pacific Ocean, he declared.

The value of the dirigible as a scouting craft is incalculable, he told the committee, since it can keep under observation a sea area larger than 25 fast cruisers ordinarily patrol.

URGES 20 AIRSHIPS

The policy of the United States, Brisbane said, should aim eventually at the maintenance of at least 20 dirigibles, more than half of them stationed on the West Coast, across from the turbulent nations of Asia. He warned:

"A fleet can hide on the ocean.

"Twenty airships of the Macon's type could be built for $80,000,000. During the war we spent $600,000,000 for aircraft and then they would not fly."

Brisbane suggested that part of $3,300,000,000 public works fund be devoted to dirigible construction and hangars. He stressed the importance of keeping a trained personnel and enough lighter-than-air ships at all times to provide operating experience for officers and men. He said:

"I call your attention to the fact that we have lost a great many more submarines than airships.

"Yet, very properly, we continue to build submarines, which like airplanes are a very vital link in our national defense.

QUOTES MOFFETT

"I had a letter from Admiral Moffett a short time before his death on the Akron saying the dirigible is the greatest protective factor that could be developed in the Army or Navy."

He made two recommendations for the improvement of the dirigible as a vital part of American defense. They were:

'First, that if the United States Navy doesn't know how to run lighter-than-air ships it ought to learn how to run them and the people ought to be willing to pay the bill in dollars as the brave men in the Navy are willing to pay with their lives.

"Second, I believe the Navy should get rid of its silly out-of date 'sea duty rule' where airships of any kind are concerned. That rule is literally as foolish as it would be to make a rule compelling every air mail pilot to come down at intervals for two years and ride the old pony express with mail bags behind him."

NAVY RULE HIT

Condemning the naval rule which requires sea duty by naval aircraft personnels, Brisbane declared:

"Because of the rule, when the Akron was wrecked, Commander Rosendahl, thoroughly trained in the handling of lighter-than-air ships, was out on the ocean as first lieutenant doing nothing in particular on a floating ship, instead of being where he should have been, in command of the Akron."

Brisbane added that in the opinion of competent experts, the Akron would have escaped destruction had Rosendahl been in command.

LAMSON PLEADS IN 'TUB' DEATH

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service.

SAN JOSE, Cal., June 5.—In a small, shadowy courtroom here today the mysterious Stanford University bathtub death of beautiful Allene Thorpe Lamson was to be brought before a bar of justice in the first of several anticipated spectacular legal battles.

Her handsome young husband, David H. Lamson, will be arraigned on a murder charge before Justice of the Peace Grandin H. Miller in the first official airing of the tragedy that befell the campus "Romeo and Juliet" couple.

While the attorneys were preparing their legal ammunition, Sheriff Emig awaited word from Canada, on a report that Lamson, as a boy, shot and killed a playmate in a fit of rage one summer while vacationing on the ranch of his father, A. D. Lamson, in Alberta.

STINGS OF BEES FOIL POLICE

When a swarm of bees escape from a hive, a squad of police positively can do nothing about it, although they try very hard, as a few Mt. Lebanon policemen who are nursing bee stings will testify today.

So will a score of Brookline citizens who also said they were attacked when John Needer's bees wandered from their premises at 616 Gallion street, and settled in the Wedgemere avenue vicinity.

The outraged citizenry 'burned up' the wires to the police station, but the bees charged into the officers upon their arrival, and the police weren't equipped for a counter attack.

They finally found Needer, who was visiting friends, and the owner persuaded the queen bee into a sack and the rest was easy. The others followed suit, and Needer marched home with all the bees.

BLIND PARADE HELD LAST TIME

One hundred and fifty constables sung the swansong of the "blind man's parade" before Judge Samuel H. Gardner today.

A bill passed by the last Legislature, abolishing quarterly returns by constables, thus saving Allegheny County $10,000 yearly, will be in effect before the September returns.

Today those who desired were permitted to make returns and collect a $2 fee with mileage.

All reported their bailiwicks free of crime, rackets and all law-breaking.

Judge Gardner grinned and said:

"Gentlemen, that's a very fine report."

He asked no questions.

Mrs. Nettie Brien, of 429 Semple street, mother of Mrs. Henrietta Brien Williams, Pitt co-ed who swallowed poison with fatal results shortly after Robert Williams, her youthful husband, deserted her, denied today that she had choked Williams during an argument over the possession of her daughter's wedding ring.

Mrs. Brien said she noticed while her daughter was seriously ill from the effects of the poison that Williams was wearing the daughter's wedding ring. Mrs. Brien said she insisted the husband return the ring, but denies she choked Williams to obtain it.

MATTERN RESTS IN MOSCOW ON GLOBE FLIGHT

ing yesterday, also expressed desire to have a bath. As soon as he had finished his meal he was provided with a shower and put to bed in a room at the airport. He emphasized that he wished to be called promptly in order that he might lose no time.

PLANS 1,700-MILE HOP

Mattern said he hoped to hop non-stop at least as far as Novosibirsk (about 1,700 miles) on leaving Moscow.

He landed here after having had only three hours sleep since leaving New York all of which he obtained during his halt at Oslo, but he looked extremely fit despite his obvious weariness.

Explaining his action in flying via Oslo, Mattern said he encountered a low pressure area about 400 miles out over the Atlantic which coated his plane with ice and forced him finally to turn north. Although he had fuel for several hours more flying, he was so weary with battling the elements that he decided to land in Norway.

After his three hours' rest there he proceeded to Moscow direct, coming across the Baltic Sea and passing the Soviet frontier from Estonia. On this stage of his journey he was hampered somewhat by headwinds but made fairly good time.

While he was resting at the airport his plane was surrounded by scores of curious Russians who audibly admired the red, white and blue machine, particularly its metal propeller.

Eastward from Moscow for several hundred kilometers Mattern faces extremely unfavorable weather, including a strong headwind and clouds, which promise to retard his progress.

Friends Celebrate Mattern's Success

SAN ANGELO, Tex., June 5.—(AP.)—Suspense gave way to jubilation for Jimmie Mattern's home town folk today when it was learned through the Associated Press that the San Angeloan had spanned the Atlantic and reached Moscow.

Newspaper offices were besieged with telephone calls Sunday when no definite reports had been received, and many persons remained up most of the night, hoping for information.

SEARCH PUSHED FOR KIDNAPERS

KANSAS CITY, June 5.—(AP.)—Seeking to round up all the suspects in the kidnaping of Miss Mary McElroy, 25, daughter of City Manager H. F. McElroy, Kansas City police today pressed a search for George McGee, unemployed Leavenworth (Kan.) plumber, and Clarence Stevens.

Along with six other persons, all in custory, the two were indicted Saturday by a federal grand jury. Detectives said McGee and Stevens had been named in confessions made by Walter H. McGee, brother of George, and Clarence L. Click.

The other four indicted, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Gilbert, of Fargo, Okla., and Mr. and Mrs. Windell Johnson, Oklahoma City, were absolved by McGee.

Action against the accused will be taken under Missouri statutes, which provide the death penalty in kidnaping for ransom.

QUIZ SHERWOOD IN U. S. COURT

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP.)—Russell T. Sherwood spent 45 minutes before a Federal grand jury today, presumably answering some of the questions about himself and former Mayor James J. Walker, which Samuel Seabury wanted to ask almost two years ago.

Sherwood, who turned up in New Jersey last week after a disappearance of 21 months, came to the Federal Building today under a federal subpena which gave him protection from arrest on a county warrant charging contempt of court.

The contempt charge was laid against Sherwood when he disappeared during sessions of the Hofstadter Legislative committee and so escaped the interrogation of Seabury, the committee's counsel.

When Sherwood left the grand jury room today he was served with another federal subpena calling for his return for further examination Thursday.

MATTERN TELLS OWN STORY OF FLIGHT

and cross the Atlantic at the same time. Grinning, he said:

"Last year's hop to Berlin was a pleasure cruise in comparison.

"I got away from New York all right and everything was fine as far as Newfoundland.

"Although I knew there was a low pressure area 400 miles out to sea, I didn't worry about it until I hit it.

"And then, boy, oh boy, did I have my troubles!

"I had plotted several routes and was highballing it on the Newfoundland to Paris route when the ship began to ice up.

"I came down and almost touched the water repeatedly, but I couldn't shake the ice clear and believe me, I began to do some worrying.

"The next move was to ease off toward the southern route, but there I found the ice worse.

"I decided to try the northern course, which is the direct line from Newfoundland to Moscow, and the ice began to clear.

"But then I hit the fog.

"I was pushing on through this stuff when I found that the ice had cracked one of my wings. This didn't make me feel any better but after watching for a time and seeing that the plywood wasn't flying off, I decided the ship would hold together.

"I began to feel pretty tired after 20 hours in the air and when I finally saw land and a likely looking beach, I decided to come down.

"After a safe descent, I found I had picked out a spot called Kragero Island, Norway. I had the satisfaction of finding this spot was directly on my course."

Mattern then described how he enlisted the services of fishermen and the director-general of the island to aid him in getting his plane clear of the rocky beach. He stayed at Kragero until dawn of the next day and then lit out for Oslo where he re-fueled and came on to Moscow. He continued:

"I cut across Norway and Sweden where the weather was fine, but I had two hours of blind flying in crossing the Baltic.

"Then I bumped into Esthonia—isn't that the name of the place?—and pushed on through to Moscow.

"I had been doing about 180 miles an hour up to then, but before I reached Moscow I hit a wind that made me stand still for a time."

Mattern looked thoughtful for a moment, and then remarked:

"But I've got to fix that stabilizer.

Mattern explained that something went wrong with his oil pressure gauge en route to Moscow and weakened the stabilizer. He said:

"I just can't keep her tail down."

Still knowing a thing or two about planes, this correspondent suggested he might make things easier by going to work on the stabilizer while Mattern got some rest.

The flier assented to the suggestion and expressed his thanks.

While the interview was in progress, officials kept running into the room asking what kind of fuel, oil and grease Mattern wanted for his plane. He told an interpreter:

"Tell them to put in the best they have. I don't care as long as it gets me where I'm headed for."

Mattern said he was not so anxious to beat the Post-Gatty record as he is to make a solo flight around the world, adding:

"But if I can knock a couple of days off their record it won't make me mad."

Mattern thought he might reach Chicago in four days "with luck."

The flier was amazed to learn that the world had mourned him for lost while he was safe on Kragero Island. He said:

"I thought the good people of Kragero had sent a telegram telling that I had landed. That reminds me to send some cables myself."

When told the world had already been apprised of his safe arrival, Mattern said:

"I suppose so. But that doesn't let me out."

Officials finally intervened and insisted Mattern get some rest. He stretched out on a leather sofa, breathing a sigh of relief before dropping off for his 40 winks.

Oh Yeah? Greets Mattern in Wilds Of Norway

OSLO, June 5.—(INS.)—Two words of American slang, expressive of the utmost incredulity, greeted James Mattern, round-the-world aviator, when he dropped his plane down on tiny Kragero Island in Oslo Fjord yesterday after flying the Atlantic.

Fishermen who saw his plane on the beach summoned M. Viborg, director-general of the island who has a fair command of English. Mattern told him he had flown across the Atlantic. Viborg stared, and with a knowing smile exclaimed:

"Oh yeah?"

Without trying to find out how this impressive American idiom had penetrated to the Norwegian hinterlands, Mattern embarked upon the task of proving to Viborg that he had told the truth.

FLIGHT BREAKS LINDY'S MARK

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP.)—By a matter of just a few miles it appeared today that James Mattern, solo globe-girdling flier unofficially had bettered Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's six-year-old solo distance record of 3,640 miles from New York to Paris.

Estimates were that the Texas aviator covered about 3,670 miles in his flight from New York to Norway—30 miles more than the Lone Eagle hopped non-stop across the Atlantic in 1927.

The mattern flight also lopped 10 hours off the Lindbergh flying time—a difference which aviation followers said was not due so much to Mattern's skill as to the 500-horsepower motor in his monoplane. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis was powered by a 200-horsepower motor.

Mattern announced before his departure from New York that one of his objectives was to demonstrate the strides which have been made in aviation since the memorable evening "We" glided to earth at Le Bourget Field.

KNEW HE'D DO IT, WIFE SAYS

WALLA WALLA, Wash., June 5.—(AP.)—"My! that's good," Mrs. James (Jimmie) Mattern said when told today her husband had landed at Oslo, Norway, on his solo flight around the world.

Pressing for details of the flight and landing, she said:

'I knew he would do it."

She said she had retired as usual last night, confident her husband would come out "all right." She is staying here while her husband is on his globe-circling tour.

Mrs. Mattern retired again immediately after hearing of the safe arrival of her husband at Oslo and before she was aware that he had continued on to Moscow.

POST IS GLAD RIVAL'S SAFE

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 5.—(AP.)—Wiley Post, whose globe-girdling flight Jimmie Mattern is attempting to eclipse, was relieved today to hear of Mattern's safety. Post said:

"I'm glad to hear he is safe. More power to him."

Post, who is preparing for a solo 'round-the-world dash, set the present record—eight and one-half days—two years ago with Harold Gatty as his navigator.

NUDISM UPHELD BY PREACHERS, MORALISTS

By LEIGH MATTESON
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Arrayed against the increasing practice of nudism in the United States this year are no prominent members of religious, moral or sociological organizations, it was revealed during the extensive investigation conducted by the International News Service.

Several prominent clergymen and professional moralists were interviewed. None would make attacks on the movement for quotation. Several, speaking "strictly off the record," expressed the opinion that the growing number of nudists were "all right if they keep to themselves."

The general public's opinion of the practice of group nakedness continued, however, to be expressed sporadically in the form of raids on nudist gymnasiums and camps.

EXCUSE FOR RAIDS

In giving verbal form to that opinion the raiding officers accuse the practitioners of nudism of "shocking and indecent exposure" and imply the "exposure" is practiced solely for the purpose of "corrupting public morals."

Here in the East, however, no raids on nudists have been reported this season. In New York State few raids have occurred since December 7, 1931, when 15 men and four women were arrested after policemen, peering through skylights, discovered them exercising in a gymnasium.

A week later Magistrate Jonah Goldstein, in Manhattan, freed the nudists on the ground "there was no outrage of public decency because none of the public saw the alleged lewd public exposure."

Meanwhile, praise of the practice has been issued from many eminent sources, including Princeton University, in the theological seminary of which the leading Presbyterian divines are trained.

In a technical report of 24 pages published last month in the Psychological Review, official publication of the American Psychological Association, Dr. Howard C. Warren, Princeton psychologist, approved the practice of nudism for the sake of mental hygiene.

STUDENT NUDIST

He based this approval on his experience as a "student" nudist for several weeks in German nudist camps just before the practice was banned in the land of its origin by Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Using his own emotional reactions as a guide, Dr. Warren found that a "flash" of "shame and shock" is felt during the first moments a novice finds himself naked with many members of his own and opposite sex. He reported:

"When everybody else was unclad, that natural shame and shock at complete physical revelation disappeared almost at once."

Dr. Warren also found that the modesty of individuals survived disrobing and group nakedness, but in a form almost exactly opposite to that expressed by clothed persons. He declared:

"Any gesture of concealment became an attitude of immodesty.

"Any efforts by women or men to obscure portions of their anatomy was considered immodest because they attracted attention, just as careful poses attract attention when persons are clothed."

Women's Finer Sheers

For Summer Days in Town!

$21.75

The special values of these dresses will be appreciated by those whose taste and higher-range buying habits have made them judges of quality. And the materials and styles of the dresses will appeal to all who would present a cool and unruffled appearance on hot summer days in town. The fabrics are sheer but non-clinging, the very wearable styles are flattering without being frilly and fussy, and the dark-and-white combinations make the dresses wearable with either dark or white accessories.

The event represents another "drive" by the Women's Finer Dress Section, for smart, wearable fashions at a specially moderate price. Regular and Half-sizes.

A dress made easy-to-wear by its softly-draped bodice and well-fitting hipline. Navy-and-white or brown-and-white, the belt fastened with prystal "flower" buckle.

A capelet jacket with molded hipline, partially covers the print top of the long-sleeve frock . . . of a heavy-sheer in black or navy, with white in the print.

The frock beneath the seven-eighths coat of this model, has long sleeves and a surplice closing. Its white flower pattern and dark color make it refreshingly cool-looking.

Big 'Mystery' Show Due For Radio

By AIRCASTER

Almost any afternoon, if you're in New York and manage to get by the guardians of the gate, you can see, or hear, the show.

It would do for a Broadway stage. There are at least 75 people in the ensemble.

There's Nat Shilkret's Orchestra, Otis Skinner, his daughter, Cornelia, an oversize dramatic cast, which goes through "the rogue song" smoothly and lyrically; there's Gladys Swarthout and Theodore Webb, a vocal chorus, and last, but not least, Edmund B. (Tiny) Ruffner, who does the announcing.

Wayfarers in the NBC corridors stop and listen, if within earshot of the speakers; attaches of the broadcasting company nod their heads in puzzlement. Apparently nobody is listening officially to the extravagant rehearsals.

What is the show all about? What will it advertise? Why don't the agency men, who are paying for the rehearsals, listen? It's the big NBC mystery of the hour.

Not even M. H. Aylesworth knows the why or wherefore of it. The solution lies locked in the breast of Ruffner, who smiles with diabolical glee as he steps, midway in the show, to the mike to make the ballyhoo. All ears are cocked to hear the secret—and then Tiny calmly reads a random advertisement from a magazine.

Can it be that this big production is going to replace the Thursday night "Showboat?"

U. S. DELEGATES 'POWERLESS' FOR PARLEY

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

ABOARD S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, AT SEA, June 5.—Hands of the American delegates to the World Economic Conference will be virtually tied, International News Service learned today.

They will be authorized to make but few binding commitments during the course of the parley.

With foreign debts definitely banned as a subject for formal discussion at the conference, it developed today that any agreements reached concerning tariffs, exchange stabilization and similar international problems must be referred by the delegates to Washington for final decisions.

BRITISH POWERS

This policy of confining the activities of the American representatives will be in sharp contrast to the British program at the conference, since Britain will be represented by eight cabinet members who will have far-reaching powers of negotiation.

The Italian, Russian and German delegates, all representing nations governed by dictatorship, will likewise wield extensive powers.

There can be no telling yet what effect the American policy will have on the outcome of the conference, dedicated to world-wide economic rehabilitation. But there will be much communication between London and Washington befort any decisions are finally reached.

The American delegates, headed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, and the accompanying economic experts, meet again today for further preliminary survey of the ground they will thrash out in London. They expect to reach Plymouth, England, Thursday noon.

Showdown on Reflation To Precede Conference

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

LONDON, June 5.—An important monetary conference between the United States, Britain and France will be held in London immediately after arrival of the American delegation to the world Economic Conference, it is learned on reliable authority.

If arrangements can be completed the monetary discussions will be held preceding the world economic parley, which convenes June 12. At any rate, the three-party meeting will convene at the very outset of the world Economic Conference.

The results of the three-party conference will decide the fate of monetary stabilization scheduled for discussion at the world conference.

France and Britain insist that before they can proceed to work out any technical plan for monetary stabilization they must know what Washington intends to do with powers granted President Roosevelt for currency inflation.

Hull's Tariff Delusions Seen as Menace to U. S.

Free Trade Apostle Leading Delegation To Parley

This is the second of a series of articles by Samuel Crowther, noted author and writer on economic subjects, dealing with the forthcoming London Economic Conference. The third article will appear tomorrow.

By SAMUEL CROWTHER

Mr. Cordell Hull is an amiable gentleman of fine intentions and high integrity. He has, however, certain fixed delusions.

These would be harmless enough in any professor of economics who might at the moment happen to be teaching instead of holding political office, and they would not be particularly harmful to a secretary of state so long as he remained in Washington subject to the Congress.

But Secretary Hull in London, as the head of the American delegation and with apparent power to commit the United States to the service of his delusions, may become a very dangerous man.

The depth, the breadth and the honesty of his convictions make him doubly dangerous.

Mr. Hull's most important delusion centers about free trade.

In the formative years of his life, when the doctrines of free trade were being preached by the British economists as the basis of empire, Mr. Hull became converted, and nothing since has made any impression on him—the progress of the facts, the progress of science and the progress of the United States have simply passed him by. He has remained a fundamentalist, dogmatic and intolerant.

The doctrine of free trade rests upon the interesting conception that nations are like individuals, in that each can do some one thing better than anything else and so, by doing that one thing and enchanging the product for the things that others can do best, the greatest material, as well as the greatest spiritual, wealth will be attained by all.

For instance, the nations with fertile lands, according to the doctrine, should stick to agriculture and trade their foodstuffs and raw materials for the manufactured goods of those nations whose lands are less fertile but who have a gift for machinery. The theory, carried to its fullest extent, denies the right of peoples to exist as nations for other than the simple exercises of local government and sees the world as one great big warm-hearted family with a level standard of living.

Free trade—although it is practically impossible for any economist to get a job in any university without subscribing to it—is purely a philosophical conception. It has never been anywhere tried because it assumes a state of facts which never has and probably never could be true.

It is generally taught that the British adopted free trade and thus attained commercial supremacy.

They did nothing of the sort.

They attained commercial supremacy and then adopted and preached free trade in order to retain that supremacy.

Britain built up her woolen and metal industries through nearly three centuries of the most rigid protective policies, including every expedient and experiment that is being tried by any nation today in an effort to build up home industries. By being the first to grasp the possibilities of the steam engine and also the possibilities of controlling international finance, she attained in the first half of the last century such a complete industrial and financial supremacy that no nation could compete with her.

It then became to her interest to beat down tariff barriers everywhere with the pious doctrine of free trade. For, to the extent that the doctrine was accepted, England would do the shipping business and finance of the world. Simply by dumping goods, which is an age-old trick, Britain could crush incipient manufacturing anywhere.

When other nations progressed beyond the British in manufacturing skill and began to sell manufactured goods in the British markets, Great Britain dropped free trade. That is, as soon as free trade actually became free trade, Britain dropped it and turned protectionist.

Our own country had one experience with free trade. The colonies did little manufacturing, partly because agriculture was more profitable and partly because the mother country prohibited most lines of industry. But during the war of 1812, when imports were shut off, a good deal of small manufacturing grew up. In 1814 when the treaty of peace was signed the British dumped goods into this country at such prices and in such quantities as to shut down nearly every American factory.

That brought our first really protective tariff act in 1816, and ever since then we have continued, with only occasional disastrous interruptions, the raising of our tariffs. The result is the richest country in the world.

Secretary Hull, in spite of the plain facts of history, not only keeps repeating the old British free trade catechism, but also he has collected some curious items which he believes sustain his theories.

In two public addresses, but most specifically before the United States Chamber of Commerce, he termed the policy of "safeguarding the home market" a "suicidal theory" and presented some figures based on the post-war foreign trade of this country as evidence of the colossal gains which this country might make if only we lowered tariffs to admit more foreign goods. This, he said, would give to foreign nations the power to buy more goods from us and make us prosperous. He cited the 1922-29 period of prosperity as evidence of what selling abroad could do for our home prosperity.

The details of his figures do not much matter. But it is important that American citizens should not be deceived as to the facts concerning the boom in foreign trade.

During the years 1922-32 we had, until the slump, very large exports, but also we had very large imports. The excess of our exports over our imports for the 11 years foots up to a little less than $6,000,000,000.

During the same period, through tourist expenditures, immigrant remittances and interest and dividend payments on American securities owned by foreigners, we sent abroad about $11,000,000,000 and they returned nearly $10,000,000,000 of this sum to us in war debt payments and interest on private loans.

Taking the whole account, we ended with the foreigners owing us for $5,000,000,000 worth of goods. During this period we loaned to these foreigners more than $7,000,000,000 on long-term bonds, in addition to substantial amounts of short-term credits. That is, WE LOANED ALL THE MONEY TO PAY FOR THE GOODS and something over for good measure.

And, although THOSE WHO SOLD THE GOODS got their money and are all for promoting more foreign trade, the WIDOWS and ORPHANS who bought the bonds to finance this trade are not so happy. They are wondering what they are going to get for their money.

Whatever may be the advantages of foreign trade, we are just not rich enough again to set up that kind of instalment business. We could promote a bigger boom at home for the same price.

Such is the real character of the foreign trade which Secretary Hull and others are intent on restoring.

SMASH LOUVAIN PARAPET AGAIN

BRUSSELS, June 5.—(AP.)—The famous balustrade of the Louvain University Library, which has been the subject of hot controversy for years because of an attempt to place an anti-German inscription upon it, was destroyed again yesterday by Edmund Morren, a mason's foreman, who smashed it five years ago.

A proposed inscription, which had been placed on the balustrade by Whitney Warren, the American architect of the reconstruction of the famous building, was removed by order of the Belgian Supreme Court. It was a Latin phrase, translated as:

"Destroyed by German fury; restored by American generosity."

An excited crowd watched Morren climb the roof of the university and break the balustrade with a hammer. On descending the workman surrendered to police, saying:

"You see there are still true Belgians."

CHURCH STATUE BROKEN TO BITS

OTTAWA, Ontario, June 5.—(AP.)—Robert Wishart, street preacher, who recently attracted wide attention by rising in the House of Commons and calling on the members to repent, caused a furore in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church during mass yesterday when he smashed a life-sized statue of St. Joseph beside the altar with an iron pipe.

About 1,000 persons, half of them children, in the church were thrown in a panic because of a belief that Wishart was brandishing a revolver. One child fainted and had to be carried out.

Wishart was seized by a church official and turned over to the police, who locked him up on a tentative charge of damaging property.

Police said Wishart told them God had commanded him to do it.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

HULL REJECTED FOR COOK'S JOB

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(Universal.)—Delegates to the World Economic Conference, allowed only $6 daily for expenses, considered having Secretary of State Hull and Senator Pittman take turns washing dishes and cooking meals but rejected the idea.

This was disclosed last night by Col. Louis M. Howe, secretary to the President, in a commercial radio broadcast devoted to the lighter side of the news.

Howe's principal worry, he said, is about a pair of California cats which are expecting an addition to their family.

PEIPING, China, June 5.—(AP.)—Provincial authorities announced today 25,000 Chinese police will patrol the demilitarized zone in North China which was declared a neutral zone in the Sino-Japanese truce signed recently at Tangku.

The force is now being formed and will take over the area as soon as Japanese forces, which invaded the district after conquering Jehol Province to the north, are withdrawn to the Great Wall.

A dispatch from Tientsin said 600 Japanese troops arrived there to reinforce the Tientsin garrison.

BANDIT SHOOTS 'GAS' SELLER

BEAVER, Pa., June 5.—Shot twice during an attempted holdup of a West Bridgewater gasoline station, near here, Herbert Hall, 60-year-old proprietor, was in a critical condition today in the Rochester General Hospital, Rochester.

Police said Hall, alone in the station shortly before last midnight, was fired upon when he discovered a man at a rear window, the bullet striking him in the right shoulder.

Both men ran in opposite directions around the building, police said.

Romantic Notions Vanish Soon After Marriage

Has the thrilling newness worn off your marriage? Have you decided that you don't really love your husband?

And is there, of course, another man in the offing, who seems to be the answer to all the monotony of your life?

If you have, and there is, what's to be done about it?

"Puzzled" would like to know. For that's the situation she is up against.

Dear Elsie—

I would like to hear your gang comment on a little problem of mine, and I would also like to have a bit of your own advice.

I am not a silly, romantic Teen-Age girl, nor am I thinking of swallowing poison or jumping out of a building. Anyway, here is my story.

After I was married, several years ago, I realized that I did not love my husband.

I suppose I should have said something or done something at the time. But my parents and my new in-laws were kicking up such a fuss about divorce and annulments and separations and so forth, that I decided, then, to stick it out. After all, I had gone into my marriage with supposedly open eyes, and supposedly knowing what I was doing, and the problem was mine.

Well, about two years ago, I met a young man, and before long I knew that I was madly in love with him. The gentleman in question doesn't know this. My husband doesn't know it. Nobody does, except just myself. But it makes me feel darned blue at times.

TWO QUESTIONS

The question is—what do people do in cases like that. Do they break up their homes, and mess up their children's lives, in order to have their own bit of happiness? Or do they continue "sticking it out"?

Can a girl really be in love with a man who has given her no encouragement?

I might say, also, that my husband is not a brute. He doesn't beat me or treat me cruelly. Even through the Depression, he has managed to bring home the bacon, and he has been a good father.

Should I forget my little dream—or what? What's the answer? PUZZLED.

What's the answer?

I suspect the answer is too much romantic imagination, sister. Yes, I know you're out of the Teen Age. But you're evidently hanging onto plenty of Teen-Age notions.

Like all the rest of your sex, you probably went into marriage feeling that it was going to be all moonlight and roses—and would forever banish all boredom and perplexity. Then you came down to earth and discovered that marriage was just a job, like any other job.

BLAMED HUSBAND

You found that marriage wasn't that Big Answer to the dullness and monotony and boredom of your life. And so, instead of outgrowing your infantile, romantic notions, you promptly blamed it all on your husband — and decided you didn't "really love him after all!"

Now you've seen another man, and you're kidding yourself that he's the answer. He isn't, sister. No man is the answer. Then what is?

The answer is inside yourself. The answer is growing up, facing life as it is and getting down to brass tacks. No one can make life thrilling and interesting to you except yourself. So stop chasing rainbows.

Happiness, anywhere, doesn't "just happen;" and even if you could marry this other man, marriage to him would be just a job, too—and you'd soon want to run out on that.

So get busy, and see how much real living you can do, right where you are. You may be surprised!

That's my slant on Puzzled's problem.

What's yours?

Success Is Sweet Revenge on Her Who Spurned, Says Fay King

I CAN'T WASTE MY TIME WITH HIM. HE'LL NEVER AMOUNT TO ANYTHING!
GOODNESS! I NEVER DREAMED HE WOULD BECOME SUCH AN IMPORTANT MAN!
I ONCE THOUGHT A LOT OF HER — BUT SHE COULDN'T SEE ME THEN!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Future greatness is not always discernible in callow youths.

Many a girl has looked with disdain upon some young man who was destined for future fame.

Surely there is no sweeter and more harmless revenge than to achieve that success which will make the girl who did not appreciate you regret her lack of perception.

"Oh, dear, if I had only known all that he was going to be! What a fool I was!"

But who knows, perhaps the best incentive to attain success is the secret hope of proving to that one how much she has missed. Sometimes they meet later in life. Surely no tribute is so pleasing and more valued than the regret he may see in her eyes!

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Seeks a Way to Discourage Nick

Nick gave his low, hateful chuckle again as I asked him to go out of hearing while I spoke to Marion and Ronald.

"All right, Baby," he said. "I promised, and I'm a man of my word. But make it snappy. I want to get out of this. We're going places and doing things, me and you."

He tipped his hat to one side, and went a few yards away. I felt the warm, insistent clasp of hands, and heard Marion's voice saying passionately:

"Auntie Madge, you must not go. He can't do any more than kill us and we can all die together. But if you go away with him—"

Her voice trailed off into a terrified choke, and Ronald took up her plea. Faint from loss of blood, and the other effects of the fight, he had waged with Owen, he found strength from somewhere to raise himself to a sitting posture—would have reached his feet if I had not caught him and with firm hands put him back in his former position with his head on Marion's lap.

"Listen to me," I said firmly. "You must not hamper me in what I am trying to do. The risk to me is not nearly so great as it appears, and I may be able to help your Uncle Dicky and Maj. Grantland when they come down as they surely will do shortly. So be good children, and stay right here until some of us come for you. Don't leave this tree or talk above a whisper unless it is necessary to attract the attention of someone hunting you. Of course no one save myself knows just where you are."

LEAVES YOUNG PEOPLE

"And that awful man," Marion whispered with a little shudder.

"But he won't come back here," I said, feeling a dreadful certainty that I was speaking the truth. Unless I was utterly mistaken, Nick's whole attention now was centered upon me, and with a sensation of utter emptiness below my throat, I went on hurriedly, finding a relief in cautionary speech:

"If it should be necessary for one of you to leave this tree, Marion must be the one to go. You must not risk moving, Ronald. Remember that. Remember, also, I'll be back."

I loosened my hands abruptly and stood up, afraid to risk further speech or even the suggestion of a farewell caress lest I break down. And it was with something very like death in my heart that I left them and walked toward Nick.

"Where do you want me to go?" I asked, stopping a few feet away from him.

For answer he took a stride toward me, and I promptly countered with two quick steps backward.

"What's the big idea?" he demanded, and there was something icy and sinister in his voice. "You know very well where I want you. Right here, Baby," he thumped his chest and opened his arms with a certain feline grace that went far to atone for what otherwise would have been a grotesque gorilla-like gesture.

DESPERATE PLIGHT

I retreated another step warily, ice in my veins, one hand upon my little silencer pistol, the other flung out protectively before me. I knew what I had to expect now, and I was desperate enough for anything. I knew that my escape from this man depended upon myself alone. Any aid that might come would be too late for me, I feared.

Then through my icy fear came a recollection of other desperate plights of mine and of Lillian's in the past, emergencies in which it seemed that nothing except the killing of an assailant would save the situation. Then there unexpectedly would appear a way out. The remembrance was like a cold, bracing shower bath, and with another quick step backward, I answered Nick's declaration with a speech into which I tried to infuse pettishness, coquetry, and a touch of airy contempt.

"Is this the way you treat your women?" I asked. "Don't you give 'em a chance to find out whether they like you or not before you spring this cave-man stuff on 'em? Didn't you tell me you weren't a gangster?"

I thanked my particular little joss for putting that last speech into my head: I remembered Nick's angry disclaimer when I asked if the man "Jerry" were a gangster, and his evident aversion to the term which so well fitted him. But I found myself shaking as with a palsy while I waited for Nick's reaction to my provocative little speech.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

You'll probably need a darker shade of powder now that Mister Sun is trying to give you a bronze finish. But steer away from yallery tan shades; they are old stuff. Blondes make a mistake if they stick to rose powder, even a fair complexion carries a bit of yellow pigment, so a roseate ivory makes for a better, more becoming effect.

Back of the sallow complexion is some digestive disorder. All the bleaches in the world won't do a thing to a greenery-yallery skin which is caused by indigestion or some intestinal difficulty. Before breakfast take a glass of water combined with the juice of half a lemon and a pinch of salt. Drink fruit juices and tomato juice. Eat half a head of lettuce each day. Pretty soon the complexion will come clear, look sweet.

Hints for the Household

Cook vegetables whole when possible, advise federal food experts. Nutritive materials in vegetables dissolve in water, and the more the cut surface of the vegetable, the more food value lost. Use as little cooking water as possible. Cook only until the vegetable is tender.

To make bran water, place a small bag of bran in a bowl and cover with boiling water.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

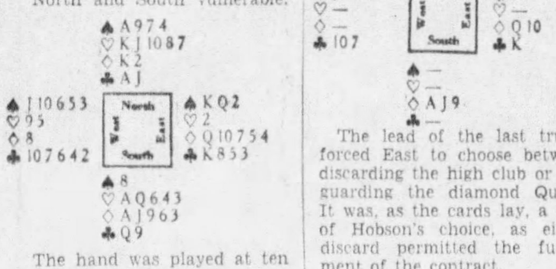
A Squeeze for a Grand Slam

It is, of course, axiomatic that a Grand Slam should not be bid in Contract where the chance of making it is less than even. However, the present premium for the Grand Slam is so much greater than that for the Small Slam that it is justifiable in some cases to forego a certain six-bid in order to try for a possible seven. This may be justifiable, for example, when the fulfillment of the contract depends on favorable distribution, a successful finesse or a successful squeeze, though never when it depends on more than one of these elements.

An interesting example of a Grand Slam which presented two alternative methods of play occurred in a recent Duplicate game in New York City.

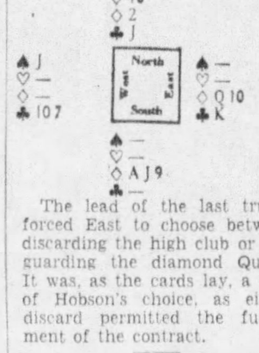
South, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The hand was played at ten tables, and of the ten Declarers three bid the Grand Slam in hearts. One player had the fulfillment of the contract automatically presented to him, for the Opening lead, a diamond, obviated the necessity for a finesse or a squeeze. Another Opening lead against the Grand Slam bid was a heart, and in this instance the Declarer decided to trust that he could drop the diamond Queen and thus find a place to dispose of his losing club. This plan failed, because there were five diamonds, including the Queen, in one hand.

The third Grand-Slam bidder was presented with a "make or break" lead, as West chose to open a club. Obviously, if this lead had been from the King, all that would have been necessary to assure the making of all the tricks was a simple finesse. However, South decided that this was not the case, so went up with the Ace and immediately started on an entirely different line of play. The second lead was the Ace of Spades. This was followed by a low spade from Dummy, which was ruffed in Declarer's own hand. Declarer then returned to the Dummy with the lead of another trump, and led the third round of spades, again ruffing in his own hand. Dummy was reentered with the lead of a trump, and the last spade was led and ruffed by the Declarer with the Ace. Now the Declarer led a diamond, winning with the King in Dummy, and continued with two rounds of trumps, upon which the club Queen and a diamond were discarded from the closed hand. The three final cards in each hand were:



The lead of the last trump forced East to choose between discarding the high club or unguarding the diamond Queen. It was, as the cards lay, a case of Hobson's choice, as either discard permitted the fulfillment of the contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Does it make any difference whether vulnerable or not vulnerable and what position you are in so long as you have the right honor-trick count to make a Forcing bid of two in a suit?

Answer—The position of the player has nothing whatever to do with the question as to whether or not he will make a Forcing Opening bid of two. The requirements for such a bid are about 6 honor-tricks with a 4-3-3-3 or 4-4-3-2 distribution, 5½ honor-tricks with a strong four or five-card biddable suit, 5 honor-tricks with a strong six-card suit or a two-suiter, and 4½ honor-tricks with a long, solid trump suit or a two-suiter. The question of playing-tricks does not enter into the making of the Opening Forcing bid, except as indicated above. In other words, the weaker the distribution, the greater must be the honor strength to justify opening with a Forcing bid.

Correct Manners

Big Family Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I want to have some kind of an affair for my father and mother who have been married 52 years. There are six children living, 26 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren. My parents live on a farm and have lots of room; but we haven't a lot of money to use for this celebration.

Will you please let me know what kind of party you would advise? DAUGHTER.

If the party is to include only the relatives, I think that it would be delightful, and not at all costly, to have a buffet luncheon or a buffet dinner. But if the party is for friends, too, the best thing would be an afternoon "receiving," 4 to 6 o'clock, say, or 4 to 7. Then the refreshments served would be such as are served at teatime, which may be, of course, very simple.

A Day Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Would it be appropriate to give a purchase ticket as a birthday gift to a girl to whom I am engaged to be married?

2—Is it proper for a bridegroom to wear a tuxedo at a morning church wedding, and if not, what is correct? S.

1—It would be more appropriate if you saved this type of gift until later—after your marriage, to buy things for your new home. For her birthday gift I am sure that your fiancee would like to have something more personal, something that she can always keep to remember this important birthday.

2—The tuxedo suit is informal attire for evening wear and is never appropriate for day wear. If your bride is wearing the traditional white wedding dress and bridal veil, you wear formal day clothes—cutaway coat and dark striped trousers.

Memos to a Columnist's Girl Friday!

Via "The Chief" West Coast bound: Dear Ruth: Thanks for getting the mail to me so swiftly in Chicago . . . Just passed Streator, Ill., and hope to have this done in time to air mail from Fort Madison, Ia. . . . Pretty weary. Not a wink the first night out of New York—and all that extra fare for comfort, too! The engineer was nervous, I think. He certainly needed a rehearsal . . . After I return the mail that rates a reply, sign my tag plus your initials . . . Chicago very affectionate, and I always was under the impression that they hated New Yorkers . . . Glad I finally met Brisbane . . . Nothing top-hat about him . . . Devoured every word he said. Told me how he started his newspaper career and how after writing pieces for 30 years without his name signed—his boss stuck his name over a piece one day and Brisbane burned to a crisp, demanding it be stopped . . . The boss retaliated by doubling his wages . . . He's about 68—has more pep than I have.

Glad I brought some beer on this choo-choo. No beer on trains west of Chicago, because some states are still fussy . . . Bernie's return to the College Inn a real event . . . Everybody of importance on the air, stage and newspaper profession seemed to be there . . . I was his stooge of honor, of course. Plenty laughs . . . Mayor Kelly, Victor Watson, Bill Hearst, Jr., Ralph Kettering and their pretty wives, and Buddy and Vilma Ebsen with me. Vilma a dream in a smart, white suit, tuxedo effect. What a face! . . . They danced and gave the others in the crowd an idea what stopping a show means . . . I meant to suggest to Ernest Byfield (owner of the Sherman) to keep them there, now that "Flying Colors" has folded. Write him a note about it for me . . . Ulric there. More alluring than ever . . . Her real heart is Margetson, who was her lead in her recent shows. He's on the seas now . . . Thank Bob N. for bringing that swell letter from Jimmy . . . Paper wants me to run those columns by swellebrities in June . . . Not that soon, Ruth. How many in?

Tried to phone you Sunday about 6:25, got a no answer. My fault, I forgot the change in time. Nothing important, just wanted to talk. Did a couple of pieces on the World's Fair for Chicago American and Herald-Examiner . . . Seemed like old times when Guinan and I gabbed and gabbed after everybody else had left up to 5:30 a. m. . . . Got four and a half hours' sleep, again! . . . Funny gag about Tex. Somebody cracked: "They call it a Century of Progress and I'll bet there's nobody in Chicago who can remember what happened 100 years ago" . . . The listener looked at Guinan and mumbled: "I'm not so sure about that!" . . . Met some of the Chicago mobsters . . . They told me that the Capone Syndicate spent almost $50,000 trying to find the Lindbergh baby on bum steers, transportation, this and that and etcetera—with the hope they would locate it and use it to spring Capone out of Atlanta via the bargain manner.

Get in touch with Hal Totten, care of NBC (Merchandise Mart), Chicago, and ask if I didn't leave some mail on studio desk in my haste to leave . . . I think I left that clipping from the Albany Georgia Herald there. That's the paper that reported on its front page last week that authorities at Blakely, Ga., were convinced that a child located there resembled "in every way" the murdered "Lindy" baby . . . We all know that Lindy identified the murdered infant as his own, but while the Georgia paper's discovery very likely is another wild steer—turn it over to the city desk and let them double check . . . The police and Sheriff Howell there told the paper that the child they have has a toe that is misshapen, as was a Lindy baby toe.

Conductor switched my compartment. Have the very last room in the observation car . . . Oh, yes, Lenore Ulric has decided to file the divorce from Blackmer in Chi . . . Little Jackie Heller of Bernie's specialists (and he's a corking song stylist, too) finally got his marital freedom . . . I forgot to tell the garage to put the Stutz in dead storage, do so . . . Anything appear in New York about Livingstone having trouble with her night club employer about staying obersay? . . . You must watch the papers closely—from first to last pages—so I won't echo anything . . . Thank everybody again for me—for making it possible to get away peacefully . . .

We just hit the Iowa line and it's getting muggy . . . I'm going to go a little mad having nobody to listen to me for almost half a week . . . Give my "agards" (as Walda would say) to Curley . . . Make the rounds of the spots. They've asked me to have you drop in. Paradise, Hollywood and Ha-Ha particularly.

Tell Gordon and Revel "Orchid to You" very big in Chicago . . . Keep after Lew Brown for quips. Ditto Fred Allen. What's happened to Elinson? Send him stamps, or nickels for phone calls . . . I understand that because Morgan and his crowd and other biggies have been getting by (via the loopholes) without paying taxes the Government anticipates a mess of trouble with the Man in the Street—who isn't going to pay any—for a few years—just to see what they will do about it! . . . Thank Almonte at NBC and Ben Grauer for his nice wire. Yours came first and it relieved me. I was worried about the strange surroundings . . . Ask JC if you can put stuff on westbound wires for me—be a big help—in keeping up to the moment. If so—see Clyde West upstairs . . . Did you straighten that Reynolds thing out? Does he know it never appeared in my column? I'm getting so fed up with being blamed for the blunders the others make.

Keep digging stuff—ask Schuster, Sam, Alber and the others . . . Haven't done "Love Letters" in weeks—may next week . . . Shoot me addresses of Hollywood mob . . . Just saw the cutest little calf in a field . . . We must be clipping off 70 an hour now . . . Call GJN and thank him for his nice ta-ta note . . . Keep me posted when "Walda" runs again . . . I mean crawls . . . My fondest to Mark, the composing room, AJ, Rose, the girls on the switchboard, the office boys, the city desk and, of course, your loyal self.—ME.

Sylvia Sidney Opposite Maurice

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 5.—Here's one that comes as a complete surprise—Sylvia Sidney will play opposite Maurice Chevalier in his new picture, "The Way to Love."

Miss Sidney

Though both are Paramount players, and have been for a good while, this is the first time there has even been any talk of teaming the New York actress and the French star. Most of Sylvia's appearances have been in emotional roles — she's just finished starring in Theodore Dreiser's "Jennie Gerhardt" — while Chevalier's pictures are noted for their light touch.

Nevertheless, Sylvia has agreed to play a Parisian waif, the target in a knife-thrower's act, and she will begin to work with "The Way to Love" company today.

All of which means that she must withdraw from the cast of "Chrysalis."

With Chevalier and Sylvia in the new film is Edward Everett Horton, who was so funny as the valet in "A Bedtime Story."

Norman Taurog will put the actors through their paces.

Was Alan Dinehart joking or are he and Mozelle Brittone already married? In Sardi's for a midnight snack, the two drew plans for a house on the tablecloth and the actor referred to his companion as "Mrs. Dinehart."

Mr. Dinehart

They'll tell you that the new Constance Bennett picture didn't measure up to what RKO expected. At any rate, Joel McCrea was taken out of the Annapolis picture so he can appear in added scenes. Garrett Fort will write them.

Ever wonder what the children of the stars look like? Erich Von Stroheim, Jr., will play a part in the new Cecil B. DeMille film, "This Day and Age" . . . . Johnny Weissmuller encountered in a lat spot, revealed that Friday was his birthday. The mighty Tarzan is worried for fear Lupe Velez will come back here flourishing clippings about his dates with other girls.

Sidney Fox, who hasn't been heard from in ages, is reported to be making an independent picture in New York . . . Those youngsters, the Puppets Club, are planning a stage revue here in the fall. Tom Brown is president of the organization . . . And Anita Louise, another prominent member, didn't go to Europe after all. She was in New York when Henry Duffy met her on the street and offered her a part in a play. She hopped back to Hollywood.

Miss Fox

A summer visitor in filmland will be Mrs. Tiffany Saportas (the jewelry Tiffanys). She'll arrive with Irene Barrymore and will be a house guest of Lilyan Tashman . . . The Paramount studio office boy named Art Bronson, is a brother of Betty Bronson.

If you can believe what you see, Helen Vinson and Al Hall, the director, are looking at the same rose-colored cloud.

'Another Language' Cast Complete

The cast has been completed for the Stage Guild's presentation of "Another Language" at The Willows, Oakmont, Monday, June 19, and Thursday, June 22. The advance sale of seats is said to be so encouraging that a third performance may be given.

The parts in the Rose Franken play will be portrayed by Blanche Levy, Alexander Kahn, Harold Daniels, Chester B. Story, Madeline Skelly Foust, Frank Furlong, Robert Wilson, Elizabeth Drake, Lillian Malone, Edire Ann Taylor and Lester Meyers. Mrs. Made Blount Macqueen is the director.

Among the patrons are Mrs. E. J. Kaufmann, Mrs. Norman McCutcheon, Norman Alderdice, Rowland Erving, H. D. Hirsh, Mrs. Rowland McCrady, Mrs. Chester B. Story, Dr. Harold Dorrance, Richard Rauh, Mrs. J. B. Drake, Mrs. George P. Basset.

Novelties for Premiere

One feature of the premiere of "Gold Diggers of 1933," in the Stanley at 9:30 o'clock next Thursday night, will be a living billboard of girls on top of the Stanley marquee. Letters seven feet high and more than a foot deep will spell out the name of the show and posed in the letters will be some 35 girls.

Another novelty will be seen when the lights are turned off, leaving the front of the theater and Seventh street, between Liberty and Penn avenues, in darkness. As the lights go off, five neonized violins, which were used in the production of a waltz number in "Gold Diggers of 1933, will be seen, played upon by five musicians.

Heading the cast of "Gold Diggers of 1933" are Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler.

MINERS BACK ROOSEVELT

Resolutions supporting President Roosevelt's industrial recovery program were adopted at mass meetings of miners yesterday at Imperial and Brownsville.

The miners also denounced "attempts by certain companies to evade the issue and fool the miners with company-bossed associations for a real union."

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, and P. T. Fagan, district president, addressed the Imperial meeting. William Hargest, district secretary-treasurer, and William Feeney, district organizer, spoke at Brownsville.

Church Observing 100th Anniversary

A week's celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the Herron Avenue Presbyterian Church opened with special services yesterday. Speakers were the Rev. Dr. Kinley McMillan, pastor; the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Dr. Charles Herron, of Omaha, a former pastor of the Pittsburgh church.

The celebration will terminate next Sunday.

TWO SUGGESTED FOR NEW COURT

The names of Gustav L. Schramm, associate professor at the University of Pittsburgh Law School, and Mrs. Lois D. McBride, a practicing attorney, were being mentioned prominently today as candidates for Allegheny County's newly created position of judge of Juvenile Court.

Gov. Pinchot signed the bill authorizing the new court Saturday. It becomes effective on January 1. Schramm, active in the Federation of Social Agencies, is experienced in the legal phases of social work. Mrs. McBride also is interested in social work, specializing in penal affairs.

Chinese appear to be just as rubber-necky about film stars as other folks. Whenever Anna May Wong, Hollywood's Chinese girl star, visits New York's Chinatown (to see the sights as others do) business goes t o . . . Nobody on the screen can glower like Marie Dressler, whose devastating glare diminishes the recipient to peanut size . . . Baron Jack Pearl is one up on "Sharlie," having been introduced in Toledo to the leonine trade mark of M-G-M, to which organization the comedian is under contract . . . Ruth Roland, one of the early film stars, who made a pile in real estate, and Anita Stewart, another star of the same date and later, are Hollywood pals . . . Grant Withers was a newspaper man before falling for the lure of the screen, his first assignment as a reporter having been the funeral of Wallace Reid.

Seeing herself on the screen after an absence of eight years from the moving shadows, Alice Brady, who'll be back as a filmite in "When Ladies Meet," said she felt like going back to New York. She had forgotten all she knew about picture acting in the time that had elapsed since she was a star of silent photoplays, including "Snow Bride," "Anna Ascends," "Leopardess" and others, and, anyway, the technique of the talkies is different from that of both silent movies and the stage, where Miss Brady has become one of the foremost players. When she saw the result of her film tests, she thought she looked terrible, and that her mouth would split every time it opened on the screen.

Lori Bara, sister of the once celebrated movie vamp, Theda Bara, is the author of "Samarang," film centered in the pearl-diving country of Malay, where it was shot with a cast made up mostly of natives. Miss Bara's husband, Ward Wing, of Hollywood, directed the picture, and she accompanied him on the trip to the Far East. Among the scenes caught by the cameraman was a fight between a tiger shark and an octopus.

All In A Day

Slight Error

IT'S NOT a new story. It's been told before, and probably by better story tellers. But it's a good story. And good stories get scarcer and scarcer every year.

This is the story of Simplicimus Green. He got the first name because his mother was reading Roman history when she should have been knitting baby sox.

Strangely enough, Simplicimus Green grew up like other kiddies, in spite of the name, and got himself married to a very quiet young lady whose idea of wedded bliss was to slave all day in the kitchen and cater to her husband's grouch all evening. And that was one thing Simplicimus had in abundance; a grouch.

"Pork chops?" he would growl. "How much are they a pound? Sixteen cents? Are you getting mad, woman? Pork chops, indeed! What are we, millionaires? Why can't you buy some soup meat? I saw it at Felix's for nine cents. You'll have to do better than this."

As you can see, the man was a trifle tight with money. Saving pennies was his hobby. That, and annoying his wife. Unfortunately, Mrs. Green spoiled his game by buying things so cheap that even Simplicimus couldn't find fault.

Day in and day out, year in and year out, life was the same monotonous grind for Mrs. Green. Movies, of course, were out of the question for her, because Simplicimus never got any passes. Women friends were also taboo because friend hubby thought they'd teach her too much that she shouldn't know. And sitting at the front window was all wrong because Simplicimus said it didn't look right.

Outside of that, she was a gay old gal . . .

Then along came Mrs. Phillips. Simplicimus met her one evening as he was walking homeward. He was looking at the sidewalk and thinking of how he'd love to go gay, just for once, when he collided with the lady.

"Hurt you?" he said.

"No," she said.

"Live around here?"

"Yes. Over in that brown house."

"Oh."

The woman's smile widened.

"I've seen you before," she said. "You come home every night about this time. Would you mind helping me with these bundles?"

That started it. It wasn't anywhere near as serious as you might think. Simplicimus never made love to the lady. Not that he wouldn't have liked to, mind you.

He visited Mrs. Phillips regularly after the first knock down. Simplicimus never worried about an unexpected husband, either. Mrs. Phillips had been kind enough to take that fear off his chest soon by showing him the death certificate. After that, Green took his hat off and relaxed in the parlor.

Funny thing about Mrs. Phillips. She liked wine. Good wine. And she soon told Simplicimus about it. He tried to pretend that he didn't hear her the first time, but it didn't work. The lady seemed to feel that her company was worth as least that much.

So the tightwad carefully removed the fish hooks from his pockets and shelled out five dollars every time he went to Mrs. Phillips' house, which was often.

After the quart had been consumed, Simplicimus would wend his weary way homeward. Once inside the kitchen, he would regret the five dollars, and promptly lecture his long-suffering spouse on the perils of parting with pennies.

That would make him feel better . . .

Life went on like that for seven years. And in seven years, Mrs. Phillips never gave Simplicimus more than the empty bottle when he left. Then one night he went there with the wine, and Mrs. Phillips was not at home.

He stood in front of her door for 10 minutes, debating whether he should leave the wine, or take it with him. Then he left—with the bottle.

At home, he almost floored his wife by walking in with a smile.

"Thought I'd surprise you," he said. "I brought home a bottle of wine. It's good for the blood. Get some glasses."

Simplicimus was disgusted. It was bad enough, wasting five dollars for wine, without wasting it on a deadhead like his wife.

Then something strange happened. Something strange enough to send chills up and down your spine. Mrs. Green started to get playful! She smiled. Her eyes lit up. She made a witty crack or two. She ambled over to Simplicimus and kissed him. More than that, she sat plump on his lap!

Simplicimus was stunned. His eyes were vacant, his lips hung open. But when his wife started to pat his cheek and call him "Daddy," it was too much. With a wild shriek, he stood up and floored her with a hefty right.

When the cops came, they revived Mrs. Green and led Simplicimus gently down the stairs to the wagon. As they passed through the vestibule, the janitor wrung his hands in anguish.

"Oh, Mr. Green," he moaned. "I'm so sorry this happened. It's terrible. That's what it is, terrible!"

He stared at the culprit.

"Mrs. Green was such a nice woman, too," he went on. "Oh, why, Mr. Green—why did you do it?"

Simplicimus gazed at the janitor with bulging eyes.

"Why?" he cried. "It's because I'm sore at the world, that's why. All my life I've been trying to save. And now, after seven long years, I find I've been buying wine for the wrong woman!" . . .

G. O. P. Pinchot Choice In 'Party Raid' Veto

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Gov. Pinchot in vetoing the "party raiding" bill on the grounds that it was unconstitutional, in reality made a choice between the support of Democrats and Judge John Fine, the Republican leader of Luzerne County.

Mr. Shields

The measure would have compelled a candidate to restrict himself to one party primary, erasing the present system when Republicans are candidates for every party on the ballot, and so are some Democrats. The system, according to Democratic leaders, broke down their party individuality and in the view of imparital observers removed party principals as issues in such contests as Congress and the Legislature.

There was general agreement that in municipal elections the party label meant little, and that the only principle at stake was comparative or proportionate decency in government. Though the one-party system in the bill applied to mayors and city councilmen, judges were eliminated on the theory that they certainly should be non-partisan.

The bill, introdouced by Senator Woodward of Philadelphia, received whole-hearted Democratic support. It was inspired by such instances as that in Congressman Clyde Kelly's district last year, where he had the Republican, Democratic and Prohibition nominations. The Republican platform was a straddle on the wet issue, the Democrats were for outright repeal, and the prohibitionists were for the Eighteenth amendment as is.

Manifestly a candidate could not be for all three principles at once, and it was claimed that voters were deprived of the opportunity for expression on the subject. Congressman Kelly is cited as a not unusual example, but one close at home.

System Hampers Them, Democrats Declare

To the statement that they had the chance in primaries to gain the opportunity for expression of their principles, Democrats rejoined that Republicans, better disciplined, invaded their primaries, and that the absence of contests in the general election hampered the Democratic party in regaining a semblance of virility.

At any rate, the Democrats wanted the bill. They got it passed with the assistance of some regular Republican legislators, such as Senator John Howell, of Lackawanna County. The bill also was championed by Mrs. Marion Margery Scranton, Republican national committeewoman from Pennsylvania.

It suffered many vicissitudes. It was not regarded with great favor by the Vare organization. Howell, however, broke that opposition by indicating a refusal to vote for Sunday blue law local option unless he could get assurance of the passage of the party raiding bill.

The first inclination of Gov. Pinchot was to veto it. Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence and others urged him to alter his decision. It was pointed out to him that machine Republicans found the double or triple party entry a fine plan to avoid conflicts at the general election.

It was additionally explained that the measure applied only to the protection of the primary, and in no sense prevented fusion or independent movements in general elections.

While Joseph F. Guffey is reticent about discussing the case, it is reported by his closest friends that Mr. Pinchot made Mr. Guffey an unqualified pledge to sign the bill after it had been explained. At least Mr. Guffey thought that was what Mr. Pinchot did.

Strenuous Objections Raised by Judge Fine

But Judge Fine raised strenuous objections. In his territory his followers enter the primaries of both parties, and without this advantage some of them would not have been elected last fall. The judge's friends, if not the judge himself, only thinly veiled their threats to break with the Governor if he signed the bill.

The manner of making these threats left little to the imagination, and their purport was conveyed to the Governor.

In past Republican primaries and general elections the Luzerne County vote has been valuable to him. Apparently it was sized against the possible Democratic contribution, and found to be of greatest weight.

At any rate, neither Mr. Lawrence nor Mr. Guffey were apprized before the Governor vetoed the bill Saturday that he intended to alter what Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Guffey viewed as a direct and restricted pledge.

The Democratic-Pinchot break will not make itself apparent on many legislative issues. They see eye to eye on social legislation such as old age pensions and minimum wage and hour laws.

But any political association for campaign purposes now seems irrevocably out the window if the chance for such an association ever existed.

Senator Frank J. Harris was the only Allegheny County Senator to vote against the party raiding bill. The Senator netted five nominations out of the last primary contest.

GUNMEN ROB 40 IN POLITICAL CLUB

Man Slugged Resisting Squirrel Hill Bandit Gang

J. D. Cohen, of Gist street, was in the Homeopathic Hospital today, his head badly lacerated by the gun butt of one of the five gunmen who held up the Beacon Club, 5843 Forbes street, and escaped with $800, early yesterday, according to a police report.

About 40 members were in the club, police said, when the gunmen, two of them masked, entered. They were all armed, and the club manager, Milton Saul, was ordered to turn over the funds.

While the members were being searched, Cohen, police said, attempted to grapple with one of the robbers. He was sent sprawling by a blow from the robber's gun.

The Beacon Club, a social and political Jewish organization, was held up once before—a year ago, according to police.

Medistino Greccici, night manager of the Postal Telegraph office, reported he was held up by a pair of gunmen, who escaped with $200 after forcing him to open the safe.

PINCHOT VETOES TURNER BILL

HARRISBURG, June 5.—(INS.)—Accomplishments of the 1933 General Assembly became more definitely apparent today as the vetoed Turner bill joined the heap of 141 bills transformed into debris by Gov. Gifford Pinchot's veto pen.

He asserted its approval would have wrecked the administrative code and "the state government would be crippled." Among the evils he cited were provisions that "would cripple the Department of Labor and Industry by preventing the investigation of industrial conditions until the Legislature expressly authorizes such investigations."

Representative Ellwood J. Turner, Delaware, father of the bill, viewed the Governor's action as "effectually destroying for some time to come the hope of the great majority of Pennsylvanians that intelligent economies might, at last, be applied to state government."

STATE PAY CUT BILL VETOED

HARRISBURG, June 5.—(INS.)—Veto of the Woodward resolution providing a salary slash for employes of the executive and legislative branches of state government was announced today. The measure exempted salaries up to $1,000 and provided a 10 per cent reduction in amounts in excess of that figure. The Governor assailed legislators for attempting to slash wages while not taking any pay cuts themselves.

Gov. Pinchot has promised to return 10 per cent of his $18,000 annual salary to the state.

Child Dies of Burns Suffered April 4

PFARR OUSTER BILL VETOED

County Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr today had been declared victor over State Senator James J. Coyne by virtue of a veto by Gov. Pinchot of a bill that would have deprived Pfarr of his office.

The Governor vetoed a bill which Pfarr says was backed by Coyne, setting up the office of fire marshal in the District Attorney's office at a salary of $4,000 a year. Peter A Connor, former city detective, now a county investigator was slated for the post, according to Pfarr.

A bill signed by the Governor two months ago requires the County Commissioners and presiding judge to give the county fire marshal a competent salary and expenses, Pfarr said.

CATHOLIC PAIR WED SUNDAY

A Sunday afternoon wedding, a rarity in Catholic churches, took place yesterday in St. Peter's church, McKeesport.

Melvin McSheehy, a Pitt medical student, 901 Huey street, was married to Matilda Sullivan, of 1608 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport.

Father Patrick J. O'Connor, who officiated, said Sunday weddings were permissible but seldom held. Yesterday's was said to have been the second in McKeesport.

Inability of out-of-town relatives of the couple to be present on a week-day was given as the reason for the Sunday nuptials by members of the Sullivan family.

LAWRENCE HITS UTILITY LINK WITH G. O. P.

Democratic Chairman Warns of 'Racketeer' Politicians

Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence told the Hungry Club at its luncheon meeting today that voters should beware of the smoke screen "piker" racketeer crusades behind which "utility racketeers and industrial overlords" work to elect their candidates and "filch more millions" from the public.

Lawrence charged a direct connection between the Republican organization in Pennsylvania and big business, to the advantage of the latter and at the expense of the public. He pledged Democrats to an adaptation of the Roosevelt national "new deal" to Pennsylvania should the minority party win the state elections next year.

OUTLINES PROGRAM

Lawrence outlined the following tentative Democratic platform, explaining that it was yet to be completely written:

"The elimination of the utility racketeer who, under the protection of the Republican party, has been empowered and enabled to collect scores of millions of dollars annually from the citizens of this commonwealth in extortionate charges for gas, electricity, telephone, water and transportation.

"The establishment of the largest possible measure of home rule for our towns and cities through the enactment of blanket legislation — or the amendment of the constitution, making unnecessary, for example, such appeals to the Legislature as for the right of the people of the city of Pittsburgh to vote on the city manager plan.

"The rewriting of our tax laws so that the cost of state and community government will be equitably distributed, with none escaping his just share of the burden.

"The utilization of the power and influence of state and community governments in effecting the economic and social advancement of the people, either directly, or through co-operative effort with Federal or other agencies.

SCORES JUDGES

"The utilization of the power and influence of the state and community governments in behalf of legitimate industry and commerce in increasing the advantages of this commonwealth as a center of industry, agriculture, commerce and education and in making this commonwealth a desirable state in which to live, to bring up a family and to seek recreation.

Lawrence hit at the presence of Pennsylvania Supreme and Superior Court judges on the Morgan preferred list, including the right to purchase at cut rates stocks in a huge utility holding company.

The Republican party, he charged, protected the utilities.

He assailed the so-called Mellon-Grundy control of the state, and declared a fiction the story that prosperity was linked to Republican success. He recited the breakdown of 1929, contrasted with the present business improvement under a Democratic administration.

The Democratic party, he said, would not be stampeded into a recognition of comparatively minor issues, such as vice and graft crusades, but would attack the powers behind the politicians who permitted inefficient and corrupt government.

Lawrence was introduced by Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania.

Engine Supplies Beverage Firm With Steam

The first locomotive ever to be used in the manufacture of beer is working 24 hours a day at the plant of the Hazelwood Beverage Company, according to Sailor V. Brant, general manager.

Because of the public's "great demand" for beer, Brant said, a steam engine has been leased from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to provide auxiliary steam at the brewery.

The locomotive has been in continuous operation for the past two weeks in conjunction with the refrigeration plant and various pumps and dynamos, Brant said.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., June 5.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Now we went off the gold, that is you had a government bond and it said they would pay you in gold. Now they won't.

Will Rogers

Well, you can alibi the situation, but that is repudiation. But they claim it was necessary, and we needed the money. Now if they can do that in an emergency, why can't they pass another one to do away the tax on all tax-exempt bonds? There would be more justice in that, for everybody bought 'em just to evade the tax. In other words, we knew we were buying a stolen car when we bought it. But that's why we bought it.

When you repudiate all tax-exempt bonds you only beat 'em out three or four per cent. But when you repudiated the gold, it will take years to find out what you beat him out of.

Yours,
WILL.

NEW LAW HALTS RENT SALES

Landlords no longer may levy on household goods sold on bailment leases when tenants do not pay their rent.

Gov. Pinchot has signed a bill to prevent levies on such goods, including furniture and electrical devices.

Under the former law, landlords had the right to seize merchandise for unpaid rent even though title to the property was held by a dealer.

Those Campaign Promises Were Really Threats

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Four months of Democratic house cleaning and more to come. They haven't swept in the corners yet.

This will be famous as the administration without romance. Those first four months were no honey-noon.

The investigated are investigating the investigators and twice as worse.

The biggest figures in the world are stepping on the carpet and taking their questionnaires with a slight dash of bicarb of soda.

Names that would slam your door and close your shudders are merely schoolboys on the inquisitorial campus.

We thought that the campaign promises were the marshy old bunk.

But this time we were fooled. Those promises were threats.

Death of Girl, 8, Laid to Rope Skipping

Skipping rope was said today to have contributed to the death of Virginia Wolfe, 8, of Allison Park, yesterday.

The case is without precedent in the Coroner's office.

She collapsed Thursday night in her home and was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital, where the swelling of her legs was diagnosed as acute infection of the bone membrane.

DENIAL MADE BY DEMOCRAT CHAIRMAN

Agents Were Advised Against Felix Quiz, Henry Charges

Charges were hurled today at Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence that he had advised agents of the United States Department of Justice against any investigation in the Felix-Muldowney Congressional fight.

The accusation was made by Attorney John M. Henry following Lawrence's address to the Hungry Club in which he had stressed party unity toward the end of unseating the Mellon-Grundy political combination in Pennsylvania.

For a time the usually staid and dignified meeting of the Hungry Club was in an uproar, with Henry claiming the right to make a three-minute speech under the rules of the club to tell the organization all he knew about Lawrence's activities in connection with the vote fraud investigation.

FLOOR IN UPROAR

Attorney William N. McNair, as chairman, ruled Henry down amid objections shouted from the floor.

Attorney Henry, who has acted as counsel for Mrs. Anne E. Felix, defeated Democratic candidate for Congress in the Thirty-second District, in her efforts to wrest the election from Michael J. Muldowney, Republican, took the floor after Lawrence had answered another question regarding Mrs. Felix's complaint that she had not been properly supported by the Democratic organization.

Lawrence had claimed credit for getting a grand jury investigation of vote frauds here through a wire to the Attorney General. Henry rose and asked:

"Isn't it a fact that you told the Department of Justice man he would find nothing in the Thirty-second (Felix) District?"

DENIES CHARGE

Lawrence answered:

"That is absolutely untrue."

He then qualified by stating that he had told government investigators that there were plain cases of fraud in the Thirtieth (Brooks-Erk) district.

Henry again rose and declared:

"Mr. Chairman, I claim my three minutes. I am reliably informed that the speaker when called upon by agents of the Department of Justice advised against investigation——"

At this point, he was ruled out of order by McNair and turning to him, Henry shouted:

"I am perfectly within my rights, sir, and you are wrong."

There were calls from the audience to allow Henry to continue. McNair ruled it was a question period and that any three-minute speeches could be made later. There were no more questions and Henry did not again offer to take the floor, so the meeting adjourned.

QUESTIONS FLY

Lawrence was asked some other ticklish questions, including the attitude of the Democratic party toward the Republicans who supported them in the last election.

He replied that the Republicans who supported Roosevelt are now considered Democrats and that if all of them in Pittsburgh stick to the party there will be a Democratic mayor next fall.

He was asked why it is possible for men like Senator James J. Coyne to appear on both Republican and Democratic tickets, and he lamented the fact that the Governor recently vetoed the bill for which Democrats voted solidly that would have stopped such a thing.

Starting from Philadelphia, the dog gave several performances on the road here. They will leave soon to continue to the coast.

The dog has broadcast from 38 stations, has appeared in three news reels and in a movie short. Ripley used him in one of his "Believe It or Not" cartoons.

The dog is also a "first class Boy Scout" of Dayton Council.

700 RECALLED BY PITTSBURGH PLATE GLASS

Seven hundred men returned to work today at the second unit of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's plant at Creighton, as steel and glass production forged ahead to new high levels for the past year.

This is the first time both Creighton units have been in operation together since early in 1931, according to officials of the company.

LIGHT FURNACE

Production increases in the automobile industry are responsible for developing the advance in glass output here, it was pointed out. There are sufficient orders on hand for automobile glass to keep both units operating all this month, according to the company's announcement.

The Carrie blast furnace of Carnegie Steel Company, scheduled to be placed in operation today, was "blown in" yesterday at Homestead, because of the need for more iron to meet the demand for steel production here, it was learned today.

It could not be determined how many men would be given employment by this move, but it is understood that additional work hours will be provided men on the company's payroll.

STEEL BOOMS

Approximately 300 men today were given increased employment at the Penn Iron and Steel Company at Creighton, according to an announcement stating:

"We're starting along the right road. There is a growing demand for iron used in the manufacture of railroad locomotives."

Steel production throughout the nation last week jumped another 4 points to 47 per cent of capacity, with the actual percentage estimated at 50 per cent, because several mills are usually temporarily "out" for repairs, according to a steel survey.

RELIEF LEADERS URGE INCOME TAX CHANGE

Social workers of Pittsburgh are frankly shocked by the disclosure of the Congressional investigation into the House of Morgan.

The opinion seems almost unanimous that the present income tax law should be amended to prevent men of means from shifting the tax burden to the salaried and professional workers in times of depression.

Some social workers favor a sales tax. Others believe in the principle of an income tax if it can be equitably administered. Following are opinions of some leading social workers:

Sidney Teller, superintendent Irene Kaufmann Settlement:

"I am opposed to the present form of income tax allowing deductions for capital losses.

"A sales tax should, of course, be put on everything in the luxury field."

H. W. SHEPARD, secretary, general manager of the Association for Improvement of the Poor:

"I am in favor of the sales tax, which I believe is the fairest method of taxation there is."

Miss Eleanor Hanson, general secretary, Family Welfare Associttion:

"All of us want to bear our just share of the cost of government."

J. B. Tufts, assistant director, Pittsburgh Housing Association:

"In general principle, I am opposed to the present form of income tax allowing deductions for capital losses."

Wilbur F. Maxwell, secretary of the Welfare Fund:

"On the face of it, some steps toward reform of the income tax laws appears to be necessary."

-"spring fever"

may not put you in bed

but if you feel

listless, tired, run-down, appetite dull, with a weak let-down feeling — perhaps nervous and worn out — why not "snap out" of this condition? Tone up your appetite, increase those red-blood-cells, and get in step with those who put zip and pep into everything they do — the best way to be happy and cheerful.

Colds, the "flu," or other illness, and poisons accumulated during the winter months, often diminish the number of red-blood-cells which are so vital in maintaining vigor, strength, and a clear skin.

There is a good old medicine, S.S.S.—tested both by time and by scientific research, which in addition to being a valuable general tonic, has been found to be remarkably efficient in restoring to the blood the normal amount of red-blood-cells and their hemo-glo-bin.

if you suspect

an organic disease, consult a physician S.S.S. is not a "cure-all" BUT for that tired, worn-out, let-down feeling — "spring fever" just try S.S.S. and see how you awake after a night's sound sleep feeling fresh and fine, — and see how you eat with restored appetite.

Instead of slowing down in the early afternoon, you should possess ample energy to carry on thru the day and evening hours. Begin taking S.S.S. at once and build the new energy that you need. Ask anyone who has tried it.

do not have a rosy road in the winter — coughs, colds and children diseases — in and out of school — bravely fighting along with a wonderful spirit notwithstanding lost weight and strength. Loving care and nourishment do much, but if parents could only realize what a boost that good old-fashioned tonic, S.S.S. usually gives in such cases, they would not delay a single day in starting them back to robust health. Full directions on every bottle. If you have never used S.S.S. you should try it.

as a word of caution

to the millions who know S. S. S. and its benefits from personal experiences, we suggest that you do not permit anyone to switch you to any of the hundreds of "just as good as S. S. S." substitutes. For generations S. S. S. has been building sturdy health. Why experiment? Remember that successful products are always imitated, but it seldom pays to buy imitations—insist upon S.S.S.

S. S. S. is a particularly valuable tonic in the Spring of the year. It is liquid of course . . . never sold in tablet form. All good drug stores throughout the land can supply you. The larger size is more economical because it contains double the quantity at an appreciable saving. Start taking S. S. S. today. © The S. S. S. Co.

Typhoid on Wane, but Continue Precautions

Professors of medicine today say it is difficult to find cases or real typhoid fever to use for teaching purposes. This is rather remarkable, but nevertheless true. Of course we are glad of it.

Dr. Copeland

When I was a medical student typhoid fever was a common disease. The wards of the hospital were crowded with typhoid patients. We were familiar with the various aspects of the disease long before we received our medical diplomas.

The disease is now rare because the typhoid germ is known and the prevention of typhoid fever is possible. Of course, we sometimes hear of outbreaks of typhoid fever in different parts of the country. This is explained by the prevalence of so-called "typhoid carriers."

Typhoid carriers are individuals who have had typhoid fever and continue to harbor the germs long after they have been cured of the ailment. These persons may not be aware of the fact that they carry dangerous germs and, in consequence, are a menace to society.

Typhoid carriers should never be allowed to handle food. They must be isolated or placed under medical supervision.

Typhoid fever is prevented by the purification of water and by the safeguarding of all food. I am confident that the disease will be completely eradicated when special measures are taken for the control of those unfortunate individuals who for years carry the germs of this disease. Until then we must take every precaution against this disease, for we never know when we may be exposed to it.

In addition to careful supervision of water and food supply, we can protect ourselves against the disease by vaccination. Typhoid vaccination gives "immunity," protection against the disease. It is a simple procedure and consists of three inoculations at weekly intervals.

The value of this vaccination cannot be overestimated. We rarely hear of a case of typhoid fever in the United States army or navy. This marvelous record can only be attributed to the routine use of typhoid vaccine for all soldiers, sailors and civilian employes.

I believe few persons realize the importance of the typhoid vaccination. If you live in a community where typhoid fever has occurred, or if you contemplate traveling in sections of the country where the cleanliness of food and water is doubtful, take advantage of this means of protection.

Bear in mind that even though you do not contract the disease you may harbor the germs. If so, you may carry them to innocent members of your family or to others with whom you have contact.

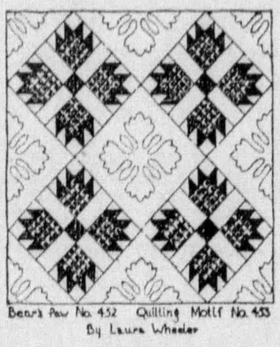
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Bear's Paw No. 452 Quilting Motif No. 453
By Laura Wheeler

The quiltmaker of pioneer days incorporated the events and the sights of her daily life in her quilt designs. What with bears a familiar sight all over the country at that time, it was no wonder that all sections produced a Bear's Paw quilt. The bear's clumsy paws can easily be distinguished in this pattern which is so easily made and so decorative when finished.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials. Price of pattern, 10c.

The Bear's Paw is shown combined with a quilting pattern which repeats the bear's paw in curved lines. It not only harmonizes well with this pattern but is effective when used with other patchwork designs. The motif is 7½ inches square. Six or these motifs as well as six half motifs for the border are offered you in a transfer pattern.

It may be ordered separately or with the Bear's Paw Quilt pattern at an additional cost of 10 cents (20 cents for both). Used with the Bear's Paw Quilt Pattern, it is attractive, varied with a lattice quilting block, for which instructions are given with pattern. The quilting pattern is also attractive on small pillows, lingerie cases and other accessories.

Patricia Pitt

To the nostalgic strains of "Ach, du lieber Augustine," Pittsburgh's smart set went German beer garden at Sander's Patio Saturday night.

And added to the floor show was a show given by a group of society's young men and women. The beer garden night was all for charity, sponsored by the University Medical Center Aid Society.

Four men, perhaps inspired by the recent Soiree Charette given at the Architectural Club, did a dance full of novelties. They were dressed as German bartenders and boasted most luxuriant black mustaches.

German Dances

Four members of the society, dressed as maedchens, did a dance. They were Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, Evelyn Evans, Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III and Mrs. John McKelvy. And Mrs. James McKay did a Vienese waltz.

But the men won the most applause, especially when one of the gallant four slid to home base to receive his old-fashioned bouquet from the master of ceremonies.

Just everyone was there, looking ever so summery in organza and printed crepes and chiffons with smart brief swagger coats of white crepe and pique looking ever so smart.

Brilliant Costumes

Genevieve Bell looked striking in a white crepe frock having scimitar-shaped inserts of black cire in the skirt and a brief fitted black sire jacket.

A picturesque white taffeta tucked mess jacket with double puff short sleeves was worn by tall, brunette Frances Fitzgerald. Mrs. Clarence Stanley wore ruby-red crepe, tied on the shoulders with bows in tennis-dress fashion. It had a gay tri-cornered scarf tied in front, too.

Mrs. J. Porter Gillespie wore narrow grey and dull rose fine-striped chiffon with the dress fashioned full below the knee.

A charming frock of delphinium blue chiffon was the choice of Mrs. E. P. Mellon II. It had a cape of the same material.

Chiffons Popular

Patsy Mellon was in pink, and Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife wore white hammered crepe with a short jacket of the same thing having red fox banding the high neckline and extending down the front of the jacket.

Louise Reed chose flax blue rough crepe with a cape of narrow tiers of the material, tying in a bow in front; Mrs. G. Faber Downey chose grey rough crepe with a full, pleated inset in back forming a brief train, and a rose crepe jacket, and Mary Elizabeth Boyd wore a white crepe frock, figured in red and grey.

I saw Eloise Dorrance at one of the many small tables. She wore blue and white figured crepe. And the R. Green Annans were there with Mrs. Annan in rough crepe with cape sleeves; Laura Evans, who was taking tickets, wore white crepe figured with red and grey flowers. A tulle fichu in grey and red distinguished the gown.

Figured Crepes

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby chose a reforestation printed chiffon in red, white and green with black lace ruffled panel on either side of the skirt and similar ruffles around the armholes.

Brocaded Laces

With her was Mrs. W. McCook Reed in beige brocaded lace. The Herbert A. Mays were there with Mrs. May in red, blue and black figured crepe.

I had a glimpse of Collie Jennings, of Sylvia Robertson and of Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly, who was in white rough crepe with tiny white buttons down the back. Mrs. H. H. McClintic chose a smart white brocaded lace dress with a stunning white matelasse swagger coat with pagoda sleeves.

And Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., was there in white crepe with a pale green taffeta jacket, fitted to the figure, and flaunting billowy sleeves; Virginia Frew Wright in white silk pique; Mrs. W. W. Goldsborough, Jr., in black crepe, printed in large white coin dots.

Swagger Coats

Nancy Doyle wore beige lace with a white pique coat; Rebecca Doyle was in black crepe with a white organdie jacket having pleated frills about the neck; Susan O'Neil wore white crepe with a full pleated skirt and a blue satin jacket, and Marie Louise Bickford wore a white pique coat with puffed sleeves over a two-toned figured blue crepe.

Lydia Irish was in white crepe with a white velvet coat having tiny cartridge pleated sleeves, and Mrs. George Wittmer III, white lace trimmed in white fur.

Mrs. George H. Love was in beige crepe with a beige satin coat with full sleeves; Helen Leovy was in black chiffon with a long white panne velvet military cape; Mrs. T. Howe Nimick chose white crepe; Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., white satin; Mrs. David M. Gilmore, in red and white large flowered white crepe; Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., in red and white and beige flowered crepe.

White Leads

The John W. Lawrences were there, and Mrs. John Crossan Hays in grey chiffon, and Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson in blue crepe, and Mrs. B. F. Jones III was there.

Bertha Brooks arrived late. She wore blue crepe with a white velvet jacket. At one of the large tables were the James Verner Scaifes with Mrs. Scaife's brother-in-law and sister, the John G. Williamses, of St. Paul, Minn. Mrs. George Kennedy was there, and the John H. Ricketsons, the III, and many others.

Powder... cleans teeth as nothing else can

Doubly Efficient At Only Half The Cost

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Dr. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

HOW THIS VACATION ROMANCE WAS SAVED

1 FRIDAY... My first day at the shore—and I've met the most wonderful man! I'm sure he likes me—we'll have lots of fun.

2 SUNDAY... I'm so unhappy! Yesterday afternoon Dave asked me for the first dance at the yacht club—I was thrilled—and then he faded right away. What's wrong?

3 TUESDAY... Today one of the girls dropped a hint about washing underthings every night in Lux, because without Lux you risk perspiration odor. Could I have been guilty?

4 SATURDAY... Everything's wonderful now! Dancing with Dave last night, a wonderful trip in his speed boat today. I'm so thankful for that hint of Betty's—it's so easy to protect daintiness with Lux.

GIRLS—BEWARE OF HOT WEATHER

Underthings absorb perspiration odor—avoid offending this easy way

Don't let perspiration odor in underthings ruin your charm, spoil your popularity. We all perspire, especially in vacation weather, but we needn't offend others.

It's so simple to Lux underthings every day. Lux removes the odor completely and saves colors and fabrics. Ordinary soaps often contain harmful alkali which fades color and weakens silk. Lux has no harmful alkali and with Lux there's no injurious cake-soap rubbing. As everybody knows, anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

ENCOURAGING SPIRIT SHOWN IN RUT

THE LOSS OF the three out of four games in the last two days would appear to indicate that George Gibson's Pirates are not breaking any speed records in pulling out of their spring slump, in which they have lost 10 of their last 16 contests and fallen from first place to third; though only one game from the top. But it must be said for them that they're not folding up. Evidence that they are still fighting all the way is to be seen in the ninth-inning rally in the second game against the Reds on Saturday, even though it fell short, and in the big uprising that turned threatened defeat into victory in the final round of the first bout in Chicago yesterday.

George Gibson

Admittedly, some parts of the Bucs' work has been disappointing right now, aside from the batting slump which, coupled with a slight injury, finally sent Freddie Lindstrom to the bench. These include the continued erratic fielding of Floyd Vaughan, and a loss of form by three of the regular starting pitchers, Heinie Meine has failed four straight times, and five times in his last six starts to go the distance. Bill Swift has had to be lifted four times in his last six starts, and Larry French in three of his last four. But bad fielding has hampered the hurlers in some instances, and it would seem to be only a question of time until all three of those usually dependable flingers get going again.

Vaughan is a problem. He is even more erratic in the field than he was in his first season, but baseball men have agreed that he is bound to settle eventually and become the best shortstop in the league, and meanwhile there is a powerful argument against giving him a rest in the fact that he is doing great execution with his bat at a time when the club needs every base hit it can get.

It ought not to be long now until things begin to right themselves in all the faulty departments. The fighting spirit shown in those recent ninth-inning rallies is a most encouraging sign. That's the surest thing in the world to lick a slump.

ONE WEEK FROM today the Giants will accompany Hal Schumacher to Canton, N. Y., to see him get his degree from St. Lawrence University and then to play the varsity nine and they expect to hear a dozen or more residents of the town claiming the credit for having sent the young pitching star to the New York club.

But the truth is that Schumacher was discovered by the late Al

WILSON, PAUL MEET AGAIN TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Little Jackie Wilson, Negro featherweight flash, the ghost of the local boxing rings, who has beaten Johnny Pena and Tommy Paul for notable victories in recent bouts, gives Paul, former N. B. A. featherweight champion, a chance to even the score in the 10-round main bout in the Hickey Park arena, Millvale, tonight.

Paul, who impressed by beating Jimmy Thomas and knocking out Mose Butch in the Motor Square Garden ring before being outpointed by the fast-moving Wilson in the same square recently, said he wasn't himself the night Wilson grabbed the duke over him and has been anxious for a return bout ever since. Wilson, believing confidently in himself, is one fellow who is positive that victory was no fluke and he did not hesitate to grant the return bout, and, if Paul fights tonight as he did in his first two appearances here, it is likely to be one of the most interesting battles of the outdoor season here.

Johnny Perrini, of Buffalo, stablemate of Paul, takes the place of Frankie Jarr, of Fort Wayne, against Tony Marino, of Duquesne, in another 10-rounder tonight, and Sammy Paris, of the Hill, meets Jimmy Gilligan, of Lawrenceville, and Teddy Mancuso, of Connellsville, is in with Shorty Washko, of Duquesne, in the six-rounders. The show gets under way at 8:45.

Vince Dundee, of Newark, N. J., ranking middleweight, who was scheduled to reach here today for his 10-round bout with Frankie Goosby, undefeated local Negro star, at the Arena on the North Side, Thursday night, has delayed his arrival until Wednesday. He is training at Madame Bey's famous camp in New Jersey, and his manager, Max Waxman, decided not to break up his routine and take a chance of having the fighter go stale here.

The five-day rule of the Boxing Commission on substitutes in main bouts was automatically killed when the North Braddock Bowl was given up to midnight Saturday to sign a sub for Johnny Risko against Steve Hamas next Wednesday night, and, failing, lost its date for this week.

YANK PITCHING STAFF POISON TO RIVALS

Associated Press.

It appears to be the misfortune of more than one good ball club this season to be in the same league with the New York Yankees. Once they couldn't keep up with the slugging of the present world champions, and now they are finding the Yanks' array of pitchers sheer "poison."

Philadelphia Athletics, who had climbed to second place in the American League a few days ago by a brilliant winning streak of 10 out of 12 games, got a taste of Yankee flinging in a four-game series and wound up in the fifth notch again. They not only couldn't get the hits, but in four games, 43 batsmen were set down by the strikeout route.

YANKS WIN PAIR

Seven fanned in the first game of a doubleheader yesterday as Russell Van Atta outpitched Merrit (Sugar) Cain to win, 3-2, and 11 more fanned the breeze in the second game as Johnny Allen turned in a one-hit masterpiece to win, 6 to 0.

The double victory gave the Yankees a lead of four games over the second place Washington Senators, who had to go 13 innings to beat the Boston Red Sox 4-3.

The New York Giants, the only National League team to win two games out of a set of four double bills, marched into first place by the margin of five points over the St. Louis Cardinals. Brilliant mound work enabled the Giants to beat the Brooklyn Dodgrs 2-0 and 6-1 as Hal Schumacher and Fred Fitzsimmons allowed only eight hits between them. Lefty O'Doul's homer was the only Brooklyn run.

CARDS LOSE LEAD

Cincinnati knocked the Cards out of the lead by winning the second game, 6-2, on the pitching and hitting of two former St. Louis players, Paul Derringer and Jim Bottomley, after the Cardinals had put on a late rally against Silas Johnson to take the opener, 4-2.

JACELSKI VICTOR

CINCINNATI, June 5.—(AP.)—Setting the pace from the start, Phillip Jacelski, National A. A. U. 50,000-meter walking champion, yesterday won a 50,000-meter walk from Neville, O., to Cincinnati. Jacelski strode the 31 miles and 125 yards under a hot sun in 5 hours 28 minutes and 5 seconds, breaking the course record by 28 minutes. John M. Deal, of the Kenstone Athletic Club, Pittsburgh, was sixth.

French Star Wins Over Helen Jacobs

AUTEUIL, France, June 5.—(AP.)—Helen Jacobs, American title-holder, was eliminated in the semi-final round of the French hard court tennis championships by Mme. Rene Mathieu, first ranking French player, 8-6, 6-3.

Mme. Mathieu, who defeated Miss Jacobs in the fourth round of this tournament last year, will face Margaret Scriven, of England, in the finals today.

Miss Scriven sprang a big upset in the semi-finals when she eliminated her fellow-countrywoman, Betty Nuthall, in a three-set duel, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

COLLEGE AVENUE LOSES

The Westinghouse tennis team yesterday defeated College Avenue, 7-2, in the playoff of a postponed match in the local Inter-club League.

BUCCOS SPLIT DOUBLE BILL WITH CUBS

CHICAGO, June 5.—As the Pirate tourists from Pittsburgh took in the sights of the World Fair today, their minds reverted back to baseball and a gripping National League pennant race. George Gibson and his players realized that for the first time this year they had dropped as low as third place in the flag chase, although they were comforted by the fact that they are but one game removed from the top.

The unusual double-header excitement in the Heydler circuit yesterday did not change a condition that showed only four games separating the first five clubs in the race, but the dual bill epidemic did toss the leaders around a bit.

The Pirates, for example, were able to get a 50-50 break with the Cubs in their big afternoon in Chicago, yet they slipped a cog in the race. The Giants, on the other hand broke their second place deadlock with the Pirates and leaped to the top on the merit of a double win over the Dodgers. The Cardinals, splitting with the Reds in Cincinnati, are sandwiched between the Giants and Pirates.

BUCCOS IDLE TODAY

It's a great race all around and present signs would indicate there is no standout club to grab the baton and make a runaway race. The five teams so thoroughly bunched are fighting tooth and nail for every advantage.

The Buccos are spending the day in sightseeing, the date being open. On the morrow, however, the four-game series will be resumed with a single contest slated for Wrigley Field. The series will come to a close on Wednesday.

A couple of Western League farmhands today stood out as the heroes of a sensational Pirate victory achieved in the first game of yesterday. Floyd Young and Floyd Vaughan jolted the Bruins in the ninth and in doing so they yanked a triumph right out of the Chicago dugout. The score was 9 to 3.

Burleigh Grimes carried the Bruins into the ninth with a one-run lead. Steve Swetonic, chief pitcher of the contest, was due to swing, but Young batted in

PARKS ACCEPTS JOB AS SOUTH HILLS PRO

MYERS KEEPS POSITION AS ASSISTANT

By TOM BIRKS

Sam Parks, who has been professional at the Summit Club at Uniontown for a year, today accepted the pro job at the South Hills Country Club, which was tendered him by telegram by the board of directors.

Parks, who finished with a creditable score of 298 in the St. Paul Open tournament, is in Chicago, warming up for the National Open tourney, which gets under way Thursday. Parks led the local qualifiers in the recent open test.

GRATEFUL, PARKS SAYS

Before leaving St. Paul, Parks sent the following telegram to John Graham, secretary of the South Hills Country Club:

"Am grateful for honor appointing me professional at the South Hills Club. Will do my best to make a good showing in the Open for my new club."

Parks, son of Sam Parks, chairman of the greens committee at the Highland Country Club, was captain of the University of Pittsburgh golf team while an undergraduate.

He qualified for the Open last year, and has been consistently low in every tournament in which he has completed. His 298 at St. Paul led national known golfers such as Leo Deigel, Bobby Cruickshank, Jimmy Johnstone and Tony Manero.

SUCCEEDS LOEFFLER

Parks replaces Walter Loeffler, who resigned to become professional at the North County Park course. Bert Myers, who was assistant to Loeffler, will be aid to Parks.

Only one tourney is on for today, the caddie masters and assistant professionals holding their first one-day event at the Country Club.

Taylor Allderdice and Peabody High School golf teams are meeting this afternoon at the Shannopin Country Club for the city championship.

The winner meets Turtle Creek tomorrow at Alcoma for runner-up honors in the Interscholastic Conference.

COCHET BEATEN BY CRAWFORD

AUTEUIL, France, June 5.—(AP.)—Jack Crawford, tennis champion of Australia, today humbled Henri Cochet in straight sets, 8-6, 6-1, 6-3, to win the French hard court singles title for the first victory of an invading player since the event was thrown open to the world eight years ago.

Cochet, apparently the last of the great French tennis dynasty which has held sway over the tennis courts of the world since 1927, was rudely dislodged from the throne he was defending and which he had held five times since 1922.

Margaret Scriven, 20-year-old British star, ranked no better than twelfth in her own country, defeated Mme. Simone Matthieu, France's No. 1 player, for the women's championship, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

It was the first time an English player had won the French women's title, but the little left-handed English girl proved herself a real champion as she defeated Mme. Matheiu with surprising ease.

The heat seemed to bother the older French woman, who had not dropped a set in her match to the finals and yesterday defeated Helen Jacobs, the United States champion, 8-6, 6-3.

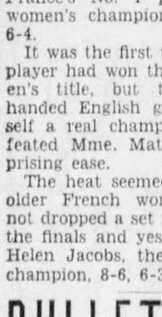
BULLET TAKES PIGEON RACE

Bullet, owned by M. F. Badali, of the South Hills Pigeon Racing Club, had the best speed in the Pittsburgh Concourse 300-mile race yesterday from Greenfield, Ind., being clocked at 1581. A second Badale bird finished second in 1580.31, while W. R. Stamford's Max III, of the Brushton Homing Club, was third in 1577.05.

The Glenfield lofts, of the Beaver Valley Club, which has taken three firsts, three seconds and one third place in four races to date, won the fourth place honors with 1565.87.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—



PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Four score and seven years ago (that makes it about 1905) Bill Klem began umpiring in the National League. Today William is jerking his thumb as spry as ever, and, as he modestly confessed this year, he hasn't yet called one wrong. A guy like that's good for half a century more in the profession, provided his whiskbroom holds out.

Nick Altrock

I got an idea Bill will still be umpiring in 1933 if the National League will only install a morris chair in back of the catcher, let Bill wear a pair of carpet slippers and umpire decisions on the bases with a telescope.

And an ump with Klem's self-confidence is liable to straggle along till 2000 A. D. before he even makes his first mistake.

CHUCK WIGGINS SHOT

INDIANAPOLIS, June 5.—(INS.)—Chuck Wiggins, former local boxer, was at liberty on bond today following a shooting affair in which his brother-in-law, Robert Moores, shot him in the left cheek. Moores likewise was released on bond. He told authorities Wiggins beat Mrs. Wiggins and lunged at her with a knife. The former boxer's ear was nicked by the bullet.

PLAYER KILLED

ORANGE, Mass., June 5.—(AP.)—Kenneth A. Meehan, 28, captain and second baseman of the Orange town team, was killed yesterday, when he was struck on the head by a pitched ball in a game with Charlemont Mohawks here.

PIRATES DROP TO THIRD

ARKY POLES ONE

Manager Grimm rushed Southpaw Henshaw to the hill. Vaughan tried to sacrifice, but failed in two attmepts. Then he sank the Cubs with a homer to right that was good for two runs. A triple by P. Waner, Jensen's single, a walk to Suhr. Piet's triple and an infield out scored four more runs and put the game on the ice for the Pirates. Bush rushed to Henshaw's aid in the inning.

Hal Smith fought it out with Grimes through six rounds of the initial fracas. Smith held the Bruins to four hits, but he had to leave the game for a pinch-hitter and Swetonic reeled off three runless rounds and was credited with the victory. Vaughan came out of the fray with four hits.

Paul Waner's thundering bat spoke twice with home-run effect in the second game, but Paul's four-sackers represented the only runs the Buccos made in this struggle and the home boys shelled Heinie Meine off the hill to win easily. This score of the twilight affair was 9 to 2.

ALTOONA PAT AGAIN

Pat Malone let the Pirates down with five hits in the nightcap. The big right-hander who turned back the Buccos in Pittsburgh on Memorial Day afternoon was in rare form again. Meine moved along satisfactorily until the third, when the home wreckers sent him to the showers.

Brother Paul's homer in the second was the first run of this game. Vaughan's fumble of Demaree's grounder in the home half led to a deadlock. One was out in the third before the Cubs put over their winning drive.

English's single started the trouble for Heinie. One Herman walked, and the other singled, English scoring on Babe's blow. Stephenson doubled to score another run, and Harris relieved Meine. Demaree's double netted two more counters.

The Cubs bunched five hits, including Babe Herman's triple and Jurges' double, in the fifth, to score four tallies. Harris uncorked a wild pitch in the inning to further the Cubs' cause. Larry French went to the slab in the sixth and finished without permitting any runs.

South Park Four Downs Charleroi

The South Park polo team crushed the Charleroi Veterans yesterday in the second game of the week-end series at South Park, 14 to 5, securing ample revenge for the 10-8 defeat of Saturday.

Ackerman led the South Park scoring with seven goals.

At the Pittsburgh Polo and Riding Club field, Squaw Run road, the Reds defeated the Greens in the second inter-club match, 5 to 4.

Kinney, who was John McGraw's first professional manager in Olean, N. Y. Kinney scouted Leon Ames for the Giants many years ago, and when he sent the dope on Schumacher to McGraw he predicted that Hal would be a greater pitcher than Ames. And this season his prophecy is in a fair way toward being fulfilled. Yesterday Schumacher pitched his sixth victory of the year and his fourth shutout.

OLD CY YOUNG, who has promised to come here for Wagner Day, has one trophy with which he would not part for any price. It is the ball he used to retire the last batter in the game in which he pitched his 500th major league victory, a record that may never be surpassed. The game was played on July 19, 1910.

Lou Criger, Young's old catcher, now in an Arizona sanitarium, has in his possession the last ball used when Cy pitched a perfect no-hit game for the Red Sox against the A's on May 5, 1904.

ONE ANGLE THAT made more notable the signing of Johnny Broaca, Yale pitcher, with the Yankees, is the fact that so few of old Eli's baseball stars have turned professional. Dan Daniel recalls that in the old days Yale diamond luminaries were noted for their staunch refusal of major league offers. Far back, Alonzo Stagg and Dutch Carter turned down flattering proposals from the Giants and other National League clubs. In more recent years those who declined professional bids included Tad Jones, in whom John McGraw saw the makings of a top-notch catcher, and Mac Aldrich, shortstop, to whom Ty Cobb offered a $10,000 bonus to join Detroit. The first Yale man to turn professional was William F. Hutchinson, who joined the Chicago Nationals in 1889 as a pitching mate of John K. Tener, the late Ad Gumbert, Frank Dwyer, Egyptian Healy and Gus Krock. In the modern era two Yale men, Pitcher Pie Way and Catcher Kiernan, joined the Giants, but soon quit for business. Way now is a successful insurance man in New York.

Joe McCarthy

YOUNG INFIELDERS SOMETIMES forget the importance of making sure of one man on a batted ball. In their eagerness to make a double play, they are apt to gum things up and get nobody, and often it proves costly. The recent feat of the Yankees in making 12 runs in one inning against the White Sox is being used by Joe McCarthy as an object lesson to overzealous youngsters. It was different from Saturday's 10-run rally against the A's.

"One little play was responsible for those 12 runs, which came with one out," McCarthy says. "Shortstop Luke Appling had a chance to stop it while the Sox still were far ahead, but he was in a hurry to get two men on a double play. The result was that he tossed the ball where Hayes couldn't grab it, and they didn't get anybody. That was the big mistake. When you're 'way out in front, just make sure that you get one man."

ONE BIG INNING that McCarthy doesn't care to talk about is the seventh round of the fourth world series game in Philadelphia in 1929, when the Mackmen, held scoreless by Charley Root up to that time, pounded out 10 runs to overcome the Cubs' eight-run lead. He says the memory is still too bitter.

But Joe does mention the time two years ago when Washington made 11 runs in one frame against the Yankees. He says he had tickets for a big show that night, but after that licking he didn't feel like going to a show. He gave the tickets away and sat at home, gnashing his teeth.

AMERICAN BASKETBALL METHODS are to be introduced to Japanese players and coaches. Jack Gardner and Clarence (Sonny) Anderson, former University of Southern California court stars, are en route to Japan for that purpose, and the course is to open in Tokio on June 15. The Sam Barry system, which has won two southern division conference titles for U. S. C., will be stressed. The tour of Japan, sponsored by the basketball division of the Japanese Amateur Athletic Association, will be directed by K. Ri, president of the organization, who became interested in the Sam Barry system of play during his visit to the Olympic Games last year.

THE FOURTH SUCCESSIVE victory of Southern California in the I. C. 4-A meet is no guarantee that the Trojans will triumph again in the National Collegiate Association games to be held in Chicago this month. They will encounter some opposition that they did not meet in Cambridge.

Track experts are pointing out that the Middle West is strong in the short-distance events, in which U. S. C. picked up 21 of its 45 points in the recent games. Ralph Metcalfe will have something to say about the sprints, with Willis Ward right in there. Jack Keller and Ward are pretty fair performers who may upset Trojan hopes in the hurdles. And that's not counting the South, which has two or three big possibilities.

YOUNG CORBETT III may not realize soon his hopes of getting a return match with Jimmy McLarnin for the welterweight Queensberry title, as the $50,000 demanded by McLarnin for a championship fight probably will stagger any promoter as being more than such a show would draw.

Young Corbett III

But the history of the class indicates that there may be a chance one day for Corbett to regain the crown, from a later wearer if not from McLarnin. For no other division in the boxing game has seen nearly so many fallen champions get back on the throne again.

NO FEWER THAN seven holders of the welterweight title, once deposed, came back to recapture the crown. Mysterious Billy Smith lost it to Tommy Ryan and became recognized as champion when he defeated Matty Matthews and Joe Walcott after Ryan entered the middleweight class. Rube Ferns unseated Smith, lost to Matthews and won back the honors from the latter fighter. Walcott dethroned Smith, lost to Dixie Kid and was hailed as champion again after a second meeting with Dixie though the bout ended in a draw. Ted Lewis and Jack Britton each won and lost the title and then regained it in their long series of battles. Jackie Fields won it from Joe Dundee, lost it to Jack Thompson and got it back from Lew Brouillard. Thompson, after winning the diadem from Fields, lost it to Tommy Freeman and recovered it in a return match.

BAER TO HAVE 30 POUNDS ON RIVAL

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 5.—Max Baer will have a 30-pound pull in the weights when he steps into the ring against Max Schmeling Thursday night.

No, I don't mean 30 pounds. That's what everybody, including Schmeling thinks, and that's exactly what Baer and his handlers have tried to make everybody believe.

WEIGHS 219 POUNDS

The Baer camp has been announcing his weight as 206 pounds, but the writer learned exclusively today that the Jewish lad actually tips the beam at 219 pounds and will enter the ring within a pound of that figure. Schmeling probably will scale 188, give or take a pound.

No one but Baer's handlers have been permitted to see him on the scales, and only yesterday, after his final workout with Pete Wistort and George Simpson, his manager, Ancil Hoffman, refused to allow newspapermen to see him on the scales.

This is one of the little surprises Baer has in store for the German and is one of the reasons he and his manager so confidently offered to bet $2,000 today that Baer will win.

UNDISMAYED BY SUITS

Max is absolutely unflurried by Olive Beck's $250,000 breach of promise suit. He also is giving little thought to his wife's suit for divorce. He grinned:

"That makes three battles for me coming up this month. Schmeling, the ex-wife to be, and the ex-girl friend. I think I'll win them all."

'I'M READY'—SCHMELING

LAKE SWANNANOA, N. J., June 5.—(INS.)—There is just one more workout waiting for Max Schmeling and then he will have completed his training for his fifteen-round bout with Max Baer, of California, at the Yankee Stadium on Thursday night. Tomorrow will ring down the curtain on Herr Maxie's training. He will rest up Wednesday and leave for New York Thursday morning.

The German weighed 191 today and probably will take off two pounds before he steps into the ring with Baer. He is as physically fit as hands can make him and is likely to fight the greatest battle he has ever fought in this country. According to Max Machon, his trainer, he'll start throwing his best punches at Baer as soon as the bell rings. Schmeling's only comment was:

"I'm ready."

REWARD OFFERED

Do You Know This Man?

Weight, 160.

Does not smoke, chew or drink 3.2.

Height, 6 ft. 4.

Hasn't changed his suit since Uncle Sam changed it for him when the big trek home began in November, 1918.

Believes in free silver, free lunch, and in open covenants openly arrived at—witness the seat of his pants.

He's taking a job, next week, in the mail order office of a big local plant. Are his clothes worrying him? Not much.

But those antique (verdigris) trousers, and that battle-scarred shirt — won't they worry the BOSS?

Not for long.

This is a prophetic remark, and leads to the moral of this tale.

If your morale is all shot (and whose hasn't been?) —charge right up to Harris' Big Clothing Department and charge the best suit in the place to your future pay envelopes.

Yes sir — just no trick at all—to exchange your perfectly good promise for our perfectly good clothes.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

MARKET SLOWS ON ADVICE OF WASHINGTON

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Wall street suffered a slight chill Saturday. This was the result of intimations from Washington that speculative markets have been going ahead a little too fast.

One inspired "dispatch" suggested that it might become necessary to do something to check the rise in stocks. The Secretary of Agriculture pointed out that the run-up in the cotton market is embarrassing the scheme to control production.

Of course, these things should not be new to any thoughtful person, but speculative psychology is child psychology. Speculative gamblers, like naughty children, always like to see how far they can go, and do not like to think of consequences.

SHARP SETBACK

Anyhow, the stock market experienced the sharpest setback in nearly a month. Saturday was the first day during this whole inflation market that the volume of trading has increased while the averages all declined and the minus signs exceeded the plusses.

This may not be the end of the move—probably not. But it is a reminder that some day, when speculators desire to run paper profits into cash, the buyers will seem few.

As nearly as I can tell, the public is continuing to come in, although not with a rush. The almost forgotten "cats and dogs," in the shape of "cheap stocks," are being trotted out as bait, and this helps to keep the pot boiling.

Furthermore, a good many big operators continue bullish. They are still able to rotate operations from one group of stocks to another, starting moves in oils, coppers, utilities, or rails, when alcohols or aviations begin to tire.

TRADE NEWS GOOD

The "business news" is working well, and when "inflation" news dies down, attention is centered on electric power or carloading figures.

So it seems quite possible that, after a little dip here, prices may be worked up still higher, although less rapidly than heretofore.

I would certainly get into a profit-taking attitude, however, and would be increasingly cautious about reaching after stocks which are being run up.

Any experienced and unbiased observer will tell you that many stocks are fantastically high. (They may say that some stock which they hold is going higher, but they will always point to some other stock which is much too high!)

It is almost customary for stocks to undergo a sizable reaction in June, and this month we face difficult situations at the economic conference, in the Treasury financing, and in Washington politics (where increasing friction is apparent).

Financial Topics

Technical Position Less Favorable Loans Indicate Market's

The technical position of the list was probably weakened a little during the past month, judging by the indicated lift in the "ratio" of member borrowings to the open market value of stocks. But the indicated increase in marginal operations, or at least the increase in borrowings necessary to finance such dealings, was neither unexpected nor particularly disturbing. The ratio will probably be shown to have risen to around 1.58 per cent from the May 1 level of 1.20 per cent. The high for the year was 1.83 per cent on March 1 last, when open market value of securities was some $13,500,000,000 less than the estimated value of $33,400,000,000 as of June 1 last.

Of course there is a new element to be considered in the matter of speculative loans at this time, namely the attitude of the banks on the matter of collateral advances, there is the question of how far these institutions will feel warranted in going in view of the recent furore in Washington on the matter, and the fact that the banking inquiry is still in progress. Yet the fact should not be overlooked that while loans have last month, the current total of stock exchange member borrowings, $528,509,438, is equivalent to only 6.2 per cent of the aggregate of such loans at the 1929 peak of $8,549,383,979.

Traders are in many cases looking for further reactions in many departments early this week, but inasmuch as many of these predicting such conditions are either out of the market at the moment or short some of their talk must be taken with a grain of salt. On the other hand the wave of profit taking which started Friday and ran through Saturday is expected to continue for awhile. That the reaction may not be as great as many think is likely because there has not been undue loading up of accounts and switching has been the order of the day throughout these big markets.

The Trader in Barron's Weekly says: "The money market shows no evidence of a strain resulting from the sensational uplift in stocks, bonds and cammodities. The earnings factor is decidely favorable. The second-quarter figures for motor, tire and so-called commodity issues will reflect a recovery bordering on the miraculous. The same is true of merchandising companes. The market has the support of a far-reaching powerful rising profits curve. The market needs the cleansing of a good purging in order to eliminate excessively weak positions and to build up a short interest."

Exploration for oil on land owned by Colorado Fuel and Iron Company again is to be undertaken in Colorado. The Continental Oil Company is moving in equipment for a test on the Tercio structure, a few miles north of the New Mexico boundary. The land is part of the Maxwell grant upon which Colorado Fuel and Iron operates several coal properties. The Continental has been given a lease on 5,400 acres surrounding the oil test and the well will be drilled to the Dakota sandstone, expected at less than 2,500 feet.

Standard Statistics Company, in its weekly summary of the general business situation says: "Business activity is unfolding in a highly encouraging manner, with scarcely a sign, as yet of the usual summer let-down. Two weeks ago there were tentative indications of a slackening in the steel trade, but more recent reports indicate another forward surge. Electric power output continues to gain both in comparison with returns of immediately preceding weeks and last year's figures. "The increase in industrial activity to date has added substantially to the volume of employment and payrolls."

Standard Offers New Motor Fuel

The introduction of the new motor fuel Essolene to the public at Esso stations on June 2, is one of the major steps in a new marketing program which is involving the expenditure of several million dollars and giving employment to many workers, according to J. D. Fisher, local manager of the business of the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania.

Coal Production Shows Increase

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP.)—Exceeding by nearly 1,000,000 tons the previous week's output, coal production for last week totaled 5,115,000 tons.

This ended the sixth consecutive weekly period of steadily rising production figures.

During the weeks corresponding to last week in both 1932 and 1931, output slumped.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Raw sugar was quiet early today. Futures opened unchanged to 2 points lower under liquidation and selling by commission houses, promoted by inactivity in the spot market, but a steadier tone developed and the early setback was nearly recovered.

In refined prices were unchanged at 4.56 for fine granulated, though some Western refiners were quoting 4.60.

Actual Gains In Production Boost Market

By B. C. FORBES

AMERICA is lifting up its eyes.

Recovery is already substantial, in not a few directions spectacular.

THE REBOUND may have been originally inspired, stimulated, started by expectations of currency inflation, of reduction in the gold content of the dollar, of starting up the printing presses to flood the country with billions of paper money.

B. C. Forbes

The comforting, reassuring, solid fact is that rising prices for securities, commodities, raw materials, etc., are being brought about by actual improvement, actual expansion, actual betterment in business.

THE PURCHASING power of the American people has already been and is steadily being enormously increased.

For example, our agricultural population, thanks to soaring quotations for cereals, cotton, animals, hides, wool, dairy products, etc., find themselves distinctly richer. Also, provision has been made to lighten the burdens of those who have been under pressure of embarrassing debts.

Owners of stocks and bonds, equalling in number almost the total number of families in the United States, find their possessions increasing tremendously in market value. Moreover, a growing number of workers are having their wages increased—with every indication that more and more employers will shortly swell their working forces, and their payrolls.

Even stockholders in not a few corporations can justifiably hope for enlargement of their income this year if the general recovery continues.

IN SHORT, America's entire economic complication has undergone very notable change within the short space of three months.

TO BECOME more specific, the following commodities last week reached new peaks for 1933, some of them touching the best price since 1930: Cotton, one or two cereals, wool, hides, pork, copper, tin, lead, zinc, silk, flour.

For the month preceding May 15 farm prices shot up 17 per cent, a gain not matched in any one month in fully 14 years. This upward movement has continued.

STEEL INGOT production is today running higher than at any time in fully two years.

Automobile production last month was the largest in 21 months, and promises to make an unusually fine showing this month.

Car loadings for the last fortnight have shown the largest increase above the previous 12 months that has been recorded since 1929.

Lumber orders are almost double the volume of a year ago, with unfilled business the best since 1930.

Not once, during the last decade or more have shoe sales matched recent records; the industry claims that not less than 80 per cent of all shoe workers are now employed.

ELECTRIC POWER consumption has steadily risen during the last month and is now approximately 5 per cent above a year ago.

The tinplate industry is busier than at any season in two years.

For the first time in three years canning companies report the receipt of sizeable orders for future delivery.

Everybody and everything directly or indirectly identified with supplying the nation with beer are enjoying a veritable boom.

The textile industry, among the first to revive, is as busy as it was in prosperous times. Scarcity of finished goods is actually reported.

LEADING department stores are doing fully 10 per cent more business than 12 months ago.

Commercial failures so far this year total 10,941 against 14,613 for the same period last year.

ALL THIS, be it noted, has been achieved without any actual currency inflation whatsoever. True, the Federal Reserve has begun to operate, moderately, to encourage freer granting of credit by banks—and will unquestionably continue this slow but sure policy. Interest and discount rates in New York have eased further; call money is abundant at 1 per cent (against 2½ per cent a year ago), short term collateral loans are available at ¾ to 1 per cent; choice commercial paper is discountable at 1¾ per cent and bankers' acceptances are quoted at ⅜ to ½ of 1 per cent up to 90 days.

THE RISE in stocks, since the beginning of the last week in May, has been phenomenal. On Friday more than 300 separate issues on the New York Stock Exchange alone reached new maximum quotations for the year. Second grade bonds were scarcely less buoyant. Saturday brought moderate profit taking. Wall street's comment is:

"The public have taken the bit in their teeth and there is no telling what will happen."

Cotton Consumption Tops Last Season

NEW YORK, June 5.—World consumption of all kinds of cotton in April amounted to 2,047,000 bales against 2,120,000 in March and 1,932,000 in April, 1932, the New York Cotton Exchange Service reported today. During the nine months of the season from August 1 through April the world consumed 18,204,000 bales of all kinds against 17,603,000 during the corresponding period of last season.

Lake Ore Shipments Show Big Increase

CLEVELAND, June 5. — Ore shipments from upper lake ports in May totaled 900,534 tons against 700,826 in May, 1932. For the season to June 1, 983,744 tons were shipped, compared with 154,890 tons in the like period last year.

Independent Brewing To Make Plan Operative

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

EARLY THIS WEEK the Independent Brewing Company will announce that its reorganization plan, by which the company will become known as Duquesne Brewing, will become operative.

Holders of over 80 per cent of the bonds have deposited their securities with the Colonial Trust Company and over 80 per cent of the stockholders have indicated their willingness to accede to the provisions of the reorganization.

New working capital is being provided through the public offering of Class A cumulative preference convertible stock of $5 par value. Investment bankers sponsoring this issue originally agreed to take 50,000 shares of this stock with an option to purchase 25,000 additional shares. The bankers have exercised this option and have taken a total of 75,000 shares of the stock which is entitled to cumulative dividends of 10 per cent for three years.

Company to Expand Brewing Capacity

THE COMPANY is expanding its capacity by adding to facilities at the South Side plant and by rehabilitating production facilities at the National Brewery at McKees Rocks and the Chartiers Valley Brewery.

The Duquesne Brewery on the South Side will have production increased from 240,000 barrels a year to 300,000 barrels a year.

The other two breweries will be able to produce about 200,000 barrels a year. New production facilities will be ready about August 1.

Distribution at the plant on the South Side has been under way since the sale of 3.2 per cent beer became legal on April 7.

Reorganization Based On Exchange of Bonds

UNDER THE REORGANIZATION plan announced March 17, the business of Independent Brewing would be transferred to the Duquesne Brewing Company. Duquesne is a subsidiary which was incorporated in 1899. It would purchase all the Independent Brewing assets and assume all liabilities through the issuance of 60,000 shares of $5 par common stock.

The mortgage obligations of Independent would be assumed by Duquesne on condition that holders of the $1,634,000 bonds exchange one-half their holdings for common stock of Duquesne. The remaining half would remain outstanding. This exchange would require the issuance of 81,700 shares of Duquesne stock. In addition 19,608 shares of Duquesne common would be exchanged for all unpaid coupons due to July 1, 1933 on Independent bonds.

Of the common stock of Duquesne, 45,000 shares would be offered to preferred stockholders of Independent on the basis of one Duquesne common for each two Independent preferred shares. An additional 30,000 common shares would be offered Independent common shareholders in exchange on a basis of one Duquesne share for each three shares of Independent common. Including shares offered to bondholders, a total of 176,308 would be issued. In addition 55,000 shares would be reserved for conversion of preference stock and 25,000 would be optioned to the bankers for two years.

STOCKS JUMP PROFIT-TAKING HURDLE

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP.)—The stock market absorbed profit-taking in fairly large doses today and, after various periods of uncertainty, leading issues again turned upward

Strength was displayed by a number of specialties, with the sugar and alcohol groups being in demand at gains of 1 to 3 or more points. Commodities were rather uncertain, wheat, corn and cotton tending to ease under Saturday's closing quotations. At the same time, trading volume in all categories contracted noticeably on the decline and expanded rather sharply on the rallies. Bonds were moderately irregular in the secondary divisions, although United States government securities and the higher grade corporation maturities maintained a steady to firm front.

Allied Chemical again was a star performer with a gain of around 4 points. Western Union gained as much.

While financial observers generally were divided as to present market indications, most of them were of the opinion that the immediate action of prices reflected caution in professional ranks principally as the result of the almost perpendicular advance since April, which, in the opinion of many, may call for technical adjustment.

News from Washington that the Democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee would move immediately to restore the license fee provision of the industry control bill, which was removed last Friday, was about in line with expectancy. It is realized that the bill is now the main obstacle to early adjournment of Congress.

The New York Cotton Exchange service reported world consumption of all kinds of cotton during April totaled 2,047,000 bales compared with 1,932,000 bales in the same month of 1932. During nine months of this season, from August 1 through April 30, the world consumed 18,204,000 bales against 17,603,000 bales in the corresponding portion of last season.

CHINESE 'DEAL' HELPS WHEAT

CHICAGO, June 5.—Helped by notice of arrangement to finance sales of $10,000,000 of United States wheat to China, wheat values turned upward today after a wavering start. Extremely high temperatures in domestic winter wheat territory southwest tended also to lift prices. Opening unchanged to ⅜ higher, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started at ⅛@⅝ decline and then rallied somewhat.

Augmented pressure to sell wheat developed on price bulges, and the market underwent setbacks of more than a cent a bushel. Continued uneasiness was shown as to recent advices from Washington that price jumps were interfering with administration of farm relief plans. Declines that ensued carried the market to sharply below Saturday's finish.

Big receipts of corn in Chicago—509 cars today against 377 a week ago and 53 at this time last year—had a bearish effect on corn and oats.

Provisions reflected weakness of the hog market.

CHAPTER XVII.

I soon found out that in New Ireland I should get no help in penetrating into the interior. Going on a patrol was impossible because of my sex. The D. O. was a pleasant man, but he refused to do anything to further my ambition. So I turned my attention to the possibilities around me.

I set out to adventure along the beach. When the tide was out—"dry water"—I could walk on a causeway of coral far out on the reef, where little eddies of cream-colored foam curled about my feet; but at high tide I had to hug the jungled shore, wary of the spent surging of infallibly timed rollers. The beach there is a glorious thing at low tide. Beautiful shells of marvelous shape and gorgeous coloring strew the sand, millions of them: trocus shells, encrusted on the outside but with a wonderful rainbow of mother-of-pearl under the rough surface, and one of the valuable exports of New Guinea; small shells with gay pink or yellow backs rimmed with chocolate color; shells evenly striped in orange and white; spiral shells; oval shells; lovely chambered shells with half a dozen prongs, yellow-backed, and with strawberry-pink lips.

Here, too, in great profusion are tidi little hermit crabs that steal anything inhabitable for their abode. The hermit crab dwells most frequently in a seashell, regardless of whether it fits him or not. He normally is curled up comfortably inside, but if you take the shell between thumb and forefinger, and whistle gently, he will cautiously emerge, charmed by the sound. Sometimes the tiny claws would grip on my thumb, sending a thrill down my back and making me drop the foolish, harmless little thing. Sometimes I would try to dislodge the emerged spider-like crab, but nine times out of ten he was as quick as lightning in reverse. Then a whistle would bring him out again.

NATIVES HURRY AWAY

Hermit crabs vary in size from half an inch to two inches across the back. While they seem to prefer shells for their house, anything that walls them about will suffice. I have seen one in the bowl of a discarded clay pipe. They are whimsically humorous things walking about with their purloined houses on their backs. They give the impression of small and very rowdy street urchins in grown-up clothes.

With most of the little villages along the Kaewieng shore I could never establish even the semblance of friendliness. I would be observed of course as I headed down the beach. Sometimes I would even see pickaninnies playing along the reef, or a boy idling back from a fishing expedition. But when I reached the clearing, with its three or four huts eaved with shaggy grass roofs, there was the empty silence of a dead place. Fires had been quickly extinguished and the ashes scattered, charred bits of taro sacrificed in haste, papaws half consumed, nets spread out to dry, and great logs that were being hollowed into out-rigger canoes bore signs of immediate workmanship, but there would not be a living soul in sight. Only the unseen presence of beady eyes from the close-crowding jungle. Sometimes a cur slinked at the fringe of the jungle, long tail between his legs, teeth bared, growling at the interloper. And 10 minutes after I had resumed my saunter down the beach, I would look back and see half a dozen naked pickaninnies frolicking in the sea-foam.

A DEVIL-CHASER

Kaewieng is notoriously dangerous because of malaria. That I escaped fever there certainly should have been due to Jolam, my boy. He seemed to have taken a fancy to me, doubtless because I gave him an occasional cigaret. One morning upon looking out at the orange tree close to my paneless casement, I saw that it was strangely ornamented. Curious objects hung from the flowering branches—an empty pill bottle, half a cocoanut shell, a tin can, a piece of laplap, a long pointed yellow leaf, and a small stone dangling from a discarded typewriter ribbon. Though I knew that it was a tambaran (devil-chaser) of some sort, I inquired of Jolam: "Along what name this fella tambaran?" Jolam, upon learning that I was occupying that rear room, had taken pains to secure it against the fever-devil by hanging all these potent tambarans close by.

Time was when Kaewieng was not the canker-eaten, run-down settlement that it has become. Two magnificent houses, with the ghosts of formal gardens and the broken ruins of coral stairs leading up great terraces, bear silent and dejected testimony to the time when this place had been well kept and prosperous, the time when Boluminski, the Kaiser's vicar, ruled New Ireland as a supreme despot, a veritable king of a South Pacific Island.

In fact, over New Ireland still hovers the shadow of that iron man, a ghost who must storm about in fury at the sight of the degeneration of the so beautiful colony which he loved and nurtured. Boluminski has become a legend among both white colonists and the natives who respected and feared him as they have no white man since. He was a Junker from East Prussia, bred in the German military atmosphere, a personal friend of the Kaiser. After Germany took over the administration of these New Guinea colonies from the German New Guinea Company that was maladministering them, Boluminski was given New Ireland to govern. He was merciless, just, and inflexible in discipline; he marvelously understood the needs of the Stone-Age people under his despotism. He was an empire-builder of the first water, whose name, if his destiny had not been grievously aborted, would probably have rivaled that of Cecil Rhodes.

BEAUTIFUL GARDENS

So he had built for himself a palace-bungalow, overlooking the myriad atolls, high on an upland that slopes down to the jade water. Along the mile-long beach road, sheltered by wide trees of German planting, walked his subjects, literally at his feet. His gardens were famous throughout the islands. Paths were bordered by coral of rainbowhearted green-snail.

The terraces had once been ecstatic with color. Native flowers mingled perfume with tenderly fostered roses and other European plants; cascades of orchids tumbled from trees; frangipani sent its drift of paradise down days and nights. Boluminski was proud of these terraced gardens, wrested from the jungle wilderness; and when a native village was to be punished for offense, the men were commandeered to work for months at a time among his flowers.

The ghost of it all is there yet, now wild and unkempt. But the frangipani trees still drop white-and-gold blossoms along mother-of-pearl bordered paths, cumquat trees still bear sweet white blossoms and little golden fruit, hibbiscus and purple bougainvillea still flaunt their gaudy beauty.

FURNISHINGS GONE

As for the house itself, it stands looking into the flamingo sunset with, seemingly, some of the heartbreak that would have been its iron master's had he lived to see the day of forced relinquishment. Nearly all of the massive Teutonic furnishings are gone, much of it stolen. This has happened to most of the houses of expropriated German planters. The huge verandas and great rooms are bare. At the rear, the wide circular drive still lends an impressive formality, though nowadays a genial Australian D. O. and his young wife live in the forlorn emptiness of three rooms and the veranda of past magnificence.

Boluminski had high plans for New Ireland. Here his word was law and the only law. Despite the fact that New Ireland was part of the German South Sea Colonies, he was responsible only to the All Highest back in Germany. It was Boluminski who caused to be built the 140-mile road from Kaegwieng to Namatania, linking the great plantations and transversing the island. He built this by forced labor: the road now in sad repair, is constructed from pounded corallime, which wears into the smoothness and durability of concrete.

METHOD OF PUNISHMENT

The native villages along Boluminski's Road were responsible for the upkeep of it, each village allotted a certain portion to attend to. It is told that whenever he came to a badly kept section of the road, he would summon to him the men of the village responsible for it, and compel them to take out his horses and carry him in his carriage on long poles for the length of the bad portion and back again.

One day early in 1913 Boluminski was thrown from his horse, and his head was injured. In April of that year he suffered a sunstroke. He died shortly afterward.

His grave is in a quiet, bosky spot, bordered by a luluai's village of woven-palm houses. The monument is perfectly fitted to the man: it is a tall, oval-topped slab of concrete upon which in huge, rough letters, filled in with molten bronze, is inscribed, simply, BOLUMINSKI.

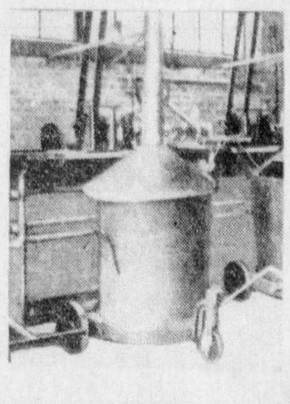
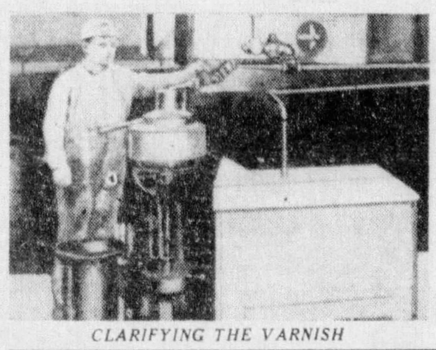
MANUFACTURE OF VARNISH

Varnish is made of copal, which is fossil gum from the sap of pre-historic trees, mined in Africa, West Indies, Philippines (Manila gum) and Java, Sumatra, Borneo (damar gum). Instead of copal, domestic rosin is sometimes used. The gum or rosin is heated until melted and by constant stirring oils and driers, similar to those used for paints, are added (above). Thinners are mixed into it during the cooling process (above, right), after which it is run through a separator to eliminate the coarser material (right). After ageing and settling in tanks, the varnish is ready to be drawn into shipping containers. (Chemistry).





CLARIFYING THE VARNISH

General illumination is considered that on an area illuminated to approximately uniform intensity. Specific illumination implies the brilliant lighting of certain areas in a room, which otherwise is less intensively lighted. By combining the two, composite illumination is attained. (Clewell: Industrial Illumination).

Give 'Em More Baseball

New York City had one of those bloodless turnips arguments this spring.

All about whether boys should play baseball in the old Central Park reservoir. Nice people want to plant rhododendrons there. Little boys want to smack homers.

There have been speeches, marching, community indignation and compromise offers. If they're going to make all that fuss over it we say let's settle it by flooding the reservoir again.

The old artificial lake wasn't much good anyway. Had some turtles and carp in it which came to the surface every June looking paler and waner than people on a porch.

During the Spanish-American War there were rumors that spies were to poison the old turtle pond. Policemen were stationed there and whiled away the sunny, pensioned hours by eventually bringing along their fishing poles.

Later on, the same thing happened in the World War. This time, the intrepid home guards drilled 16 abreast around the embattled moat.

So that's why we say fill her in again. Us tough patriots have got to have threatened reservoirs to win our medals on. When the heavy shells and barracks tenor are shrieking in the thickest of the fight we will guard the nation's drinking supply without benefit of repeal.

There's still the upper reservoir left. That's liable to break any day and brush the roller skaters off the mall. In that case, Central Park casino will be a stopping place on the way to Europe.

The upper reservoir is one-and-three-quarters miles around and ain't a bad walk. The man who breaks in our new shoes says it is great.

If the boys want to play baseball they should play. The nasturtium scientists also should be encouraged. We will donate to them a flat spot somewhere in the Rockies.

There is imagination and spirit in a ball game and none at all in the flower business. We never heard two teams of florists arguing whether a bulb was a tulip or a pansy.

And we never saw them reach that stage of manly boyishness where they chased the umpire down the street.

The Akron Inquiry

Its Results Can Be Beneficial to Nation's Air Defense Despite Pacifist Chairman.

Upon the joint committee of the Congress which has been endeavoring to fix the responsibility for the wreck of the Akron and other Army and Navy dirigibles devolves a great responsibility.

Congress and the country are patiently awaiting the verdict of the committee regarding the future use of this type of aircraft for military or naval purposes.

As chairman of the joint committee, Senator King, of Utah, has proved to be a most unfortunate selection. Instead of conducting the hearings with a view to developing the untrammeled opinion of those witnesses qualified to give expert testimony, Senator King appears to have been chiefly concerned with ventilating his congenital prejudices against the national defense and utilizing the committee's inquiry as an opportunity to broadcast his pacifist propaganda.

Fortunately, however, for the reputation of the Congress, a majority of the committee seems to be making an honest effort to get at all the facts about the loss of the Akron and to offer sound recommendations regarding the future of the dirigible as an agency of national defense.

In spite of the insistence by the chairman upon clogging up the record of the hearings with a voluminous mass of clippings from newspapers and magazines blindly hostile to the development of the dirigible, the testimony thus far given by competent witnesses points to the following conclusions:

That the Akron was well built, well designed, and in good condition when lost in the storm off the Jersey Coast April fourth last.

That the Akron's commanding officer at the time of her destruction, while a competent naval officer, had not been given ample opportunity to familiarize himself with the operation of an airship, especially in bad weather.

That the Navy's present system of training for the operation of airships is antiquated and bureaucratic, giving too great authority to men who have been trained as seamen and not enough authority or responsibility to those who have been duly and adequately trained as airmen.

That the art of building airships has been effectively transplanted to the United States and that all agencies, both scientific and manufacturing, are now available in this country to develop the dirigible to a position of indisputable and indispensable usefulness in our national defense system.

If the members of the joint committee will disassociate themselves from the deplorable prejudices of the chairman and insist upon writing their own report, in the light of the competent testimony developed, the American people will support the Congress in a firm resolve that the heroic dead of the Akron shall not have died in vain.

Those brave men made the supreme sacrifice aboard the Akron because they had the faith to believe that the development of the dirigible is essential to American defense and the courage to go to their last reward in that abiding faith.

If the report of the joint committee is to be worthy the memory of the Akron's heroes, its recommendation for the future development of the dirigible will be made in the light of the facts and conclusions of competent witnesses, and not in the darkness of the doubts and fears and prejudices of men of little faith and less foresight.

Bank Quiz Attacked

Inadequate Appropriation Proposal Seen As "Slick" Trick of Opposition.

Not more remarkable are the disclosures of the Senate Committee on Banking than the fact that its investigation has not yet been stopped.

Every known device has been used to stop it, to slow it down, to deflect it from persons or subjects, which it was somebodys' interest to cover up and protect.

And yet the investigation has fought its way over every conceivable obstruction, from one amazing revelation to another, until today as hearings are resumed after the week-end recess, it can point to achievements in the interests of the people greater than have been accomplished by any legislative inquiry within long memory.

One would think that such a record would still the opponents of the investigation and put a quietus upon the determined resistance it has encountered.

But interest and servility, and perhaps we should add in the light of the Morgan disclosures—gratitude for munificent favors—are still in the field, and striving under cover to bring the investigation to a close before more facts are brought out to add to the confusion and discredit of the vicious system in which their hopes of reward are centered.

The immediate issue between the honest supporters of this investigation and the dishonest determination to smother it is on the appropriation of a suitable amount to assure the continuation of the committee's labors.

A week ago, although Senator Fletcher, the chairman of the committee, had made the altogether reasonable request for an adidtional $75,000, an appropriation was slipped through the intermediate steps to passage providing only $20,000.

This reduced sum is conceded on all sides to be wholly inadequate. In fact, the sole design of a reduced appropriation is that it shall prove inadequate, and force the committee to abandon its work which is far from finished.

The senatorial partisans of the bankers regard this as a rather "slick" way of putting the dreaded investigation on ice, while not openly opposing it.

This trick will deceive no one. It deserves the excoriation which it is certain to receive from honorable Senators whose loyalty is to their public trust and to the nation,—not to the banker witnesses.

To hamstring this investigation now would incense public opinion and bring suspicion and disgrace upon every Senator who had a hand in it.

Momentous and fraught with the utmost public significance as the disclosures are to date, the surface has only been scratched.

The investigation must be pursued to the end—with honest support by the Senate.

And this involves an honest provision of sufficient money to cover the necessary expenses of the committee and its faithful and effective aides.

Personal—To You

I cannot express the heartfelt thanks I feel to you and you and YOU—to each and every one, who took the time and trouble in these busy days, to send me a line or a letter or a postcard of greeting and welcome on my return to this space!

* * *

Your letter may be answered before this appears—or at least may be acknowledged by a line of appreciation. Meantime, it is right here on my desk, probably marked "Important—Reply immediately."

And I want to thank, just as deeply and heartily, all those of you, who wrote me or the editor, while I was away, to say that you missed my column or to express regret for my illness.

Believe it or not, these spontaneous and unexpected letters have done more to buck me up, than all the doctor's tonics. Every day, while they were arriving, was Christmas Day to ME!

You see, every writer, good, bad or indifferent, is a highly sensitized person, with a morbid, underlying inferiority complex, no matter how conceited or cocky or cynical he may appear on the surface. And he (or she) can swallow, without choking, all the encouragement, compliments and applesauce you can feed him. He needs a cheer-leader, every minute!

* * *

So, when you drop your favorite novelist a line of praise or enthusiasm, don't be shy and don't apologize. He (or she) will not toss it scornfully into the waste-basket—he'll EAT IT UP and love you for it! And you can't lay it on too thick—it's all bound to STICK!

Which is just how I feel about that beautiful snowstorm of letters!

G. D. R., New York—Not guilty! I have NOT been SINGING on the RADIO! I have never SUNG over the radio, or anywhere in my life! I've spoken over the radio and wisecracked over the radio—and may do so again. But I'm one of those "birds" who CAN'T sing—and mercifully WON'T sing.

* * *

George R., California—Why pick on Bernard Shaw? I felt sorry for him. A tired old gentleman stops at our shore on his way around the world, is forced to talk and tries to be "funny." His wit, never of the belly-laugh variety, and now a little out of date, didn't click—that's all. It is hard for those of the belly-laugh decade to appreciate the humor of the chuckle-decade.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Whenever I buy a cheap dress, I'm sorry.

Not that the cheap dress isn't good in itself. Usually it's amazingly good—pretty, smartly cut, well finished.

Yet when I buy a cheap dress, I'm sorry. And I know that, no matter how much money I may save or how much pleasure I may receive, it's a bad bargain in the end.

FOR THAT DRESS ISN'T CHEAP TO THE GIRL WHO MAKES IT—

NOR TO THE MERCHANT WHO BUYS IT—

NOR TO THE CLERK WHO SELLS IT—

NOR TO THE NATION IN WHICH IT IS MADE.

THE CHEAPER THE DRESS, THE HIGHER IT COSTS US ALL!

For cheap dresses mean cheap work.

And cheap work means cheap living.

And cheap living means cheap standards.

And where do we go from there?

Ask the cop, and the judge, and the social worker, and the man at the morgue. They know where we go from there.

They know what happens when a discouraged youngster, longing for fun and adventure, has to work at starvation wages that crush all the joy out of youth's few, fleeting years.

They know what happens when a desperate man or woman finally realizes that he or she can never hope to make the grade.

Cheap clothes. Cheap food. Cheap merchandise of every sort. We're paying a terrible price for such cheapness—and every time I buy a cheap dress I grow sick at the thought of the cost.

Then why don't I make the dress myself? I could. I made all my own clothes for many years. That was real economy—once. It isn't any more. The world has changed. I'm a public nuisance unless my own viewpoints and personal habits change with it. So—I no longer make my own dresses.

The girl who makes the cheap dress gets mighty little as it is. She'd get nothing at all if I made it myself.

THAT GIRL MUST EAT.

AND IT'S UP TO YOU AND ME TO SEE THAT SHE EATS.

IF ONLY FOR THE SAKE OF OUR OWN SELFISH SECURITY, IT'S UP TO YOU AND ME TO SEE THAT THAT GIRLS EATS.

FOR IF SHE DOESN'T EAT—PRESENTLY YOU AND I WON'T EAT.

How did we, how did all the world, get this way—into this desperate depression?

That's how we got this way. By not caring whether the other fellow ate or not; by not caring what any article cost the other fellow.

But neither an individual, nor a nation, can prosper long living like that. Youve GOT to be your "brother's keeper," whether you like the job or not; for if you don't keep him he won't keep you.

That isn't sentimental theory. That's sound, economic fact. And it's the ONLY sound economic fact. All these other financial and industrial expedients — special taxes, trick tariffs, relief appropriations, emergency public works—none of them will cure what ails us. Only a change in our own hearts will cure what ails us.

A NEW FEELING FOR THE OTHER FELLOW—

A NEW REALIZATION OF HIS PLIGHT—

A NEW DESIRE TO SEE THAT HE GETS HIS RIGHT—

A NEW WILLINGNESS TO HELP HIM IN HIS FIGHT.

THAT'S THE ONLY THING THAT WILL SAVE US.

AND WE'D BETTER GET GOING!

FOR, IF WE DON'T SAVE THE OTHER FELLOW, HE MAY PRESENTLY ARRANGE TO SAVE HIMSELF — AND THAT MAY NOT BE SO PLEASANT, FELLOW CITIZEN!

And so I'm not only sad, but I'm plenty scared, when I buy a cheap dress, and I see dresses getting cheaper and cheaper.

The Human Side of the News

The Most Influential Man in Washington—The Friendship of President Roosevelt and His Private Secretary—Howe's Personality

By EDWIN C. HILL

WHO is the most influential man in Washington? With the President, of course. Many are named by Washington observers who like to think they are on the "inside." Not a single representative in Congress is in the list, and the lordly Senators are, with the exception of two or three, shriekingly conspicuous by their absence.

By general agreement the laurel is placed tenderly upon the head of that amazing individual, Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to the President and Franklin Delano Roosevelt's alter ego for these 20 years. A curiously engaging little man, with the head and body of a mediaeval gnome; strangely shy and even contemptuous of the limelight that politicians so love to welter in; with a head full of brains and a heart charged with real love for mankind.

THE "brain trust" functions briskly, the same being composed of Columbia Prof. Raymond Moley, who is a kind of chairman of the board of a fluid, constantly changing group of 60 or 70 apparently disinterested, trained intelligences who supply the President with recipes for the millennium.

Big Jim Farley, Postmaster General and political generalissimo for the administration, is a man to be reckoned with, having some 117,000 jobs to distribute among deserving Democrats.

William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury, continues in the very closest relationship with his chief, in spite of occupying a place upon two or more lists of the gentlemen listed by J. Pierpont Morgan as among his "close friends."

The gentle and pious Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, undoubtedly occupies a lofty rung upon the ladder which leads up to the Roosevelt ear. But when all is said and done, it is Louis McHenry Howe, the little, unobtrusive, modest, kindly, efficient Howe, who holds place No. 1 in the President's regard and who can get, when he so wills, about anything from the President that he cares to ask.

WELL, why not, life being what it is and human nature being what it is? Without taking a thing away from Franklin D. Roosevelt's own powerful personality, it is at least a question how far he would have got without Louis Howe's cool, clear commonsense and Louis Howe's uncanny estimation of public opinion and which way the cat of public sentiment was going to jump.

It began away back in 1911, in the days when Charles Francis Murphy was attempting to "put over" as United States Senator from New York an engaging and able corporation attorney of the name of William F. Sheehan.

Roosevelt as a lanky, eager young State Senator had just arrived in Albany, burning with Rooseveltian ambition to swat the political bosses. Louis Howe, writing pieces for the New York Herald and growing ever more cynical over politics and politicians, pricked up his large ears when young Roosevelt leaped into the Sheehan fight. He could hardly believe his ears or eyes—that here, actually, was a politician on the level—but presently he convinced himself that young Roosevelt was the pure quill, and from then on he attached himself to the fortunes of Franklin D. Roosevelt with the fidelity and intelligence of a shepherd dog, plus all the finer qualities of a human soul. With Howe's shrewd guidance "Blue-Eyed Billy" Sheehan was retained in private life, and the long period began of the firm of Roosevelt and Howe, new dealers and purveyors to the under dog.

WHEN Roosevelt's affliction struck him so suddenly and terrifically, laying him upon his back for years, it was Louis Howe who quietly took charge of his political future, who kept his name before the people, who saw to it that Roosevelt remained always a personality and a potential force in the minds of the politicians. That period of the President's physical helplessness brought to flower one of the sincerest and most beautiful friendships in history, one that suffers not at all from comparison with the love that existed between Damon and Pythias and Roland and Oliver.

By resolution, unflinching courage and the power of conquering himself, Roosevelt proved himself to Howe, and by loyalty and intelligence and tremendous industry, Howe proved himself to Roosevelt. Is it any wonder, therefore, that this little dark man, with the almost emaciated body and a heart that flutters dangerously whenever he attempts the smallest flight of stairs, holds first place in the President's affections, trust and esteem?

IT WAS not Howe's idea at all that Roosevelt run for Governor in 1928, the year that Smith made his tragic bid for the presidency. It was too soon, Howe felt. There was plenty of time, and Roosevelt (or so both reckoned) needed time to gain more physical strength.

But destiny took a hand. Alfred E. Smith dragooned Roosevelt into the race, thereby creating a new leader of the Democratic party and the thirty-first (as an individual) President of these more or less United States. But when 1932 came along, and long before that, Howe was ready. Sitting at the center of the Roosevelt web of strategy, a benevolent spider, he spung the threads which were cast out over the country to ensnare the delegates to the convention, and working with that big, forthright, breezy, handshaking, likeable buckaroo, Jim Farley, there was really nothing to it from the start, once Howe had completed his plans.

THIS writer will never forget the picture Louis Howe presented on those hot July nights while he was making a President of the United States in room 1502 of the Congress Hotel in Chicago. Staggering for want of sleep, weak from lack of proper food, half poisoned by the bad air of a cigaret-and-cigar smoke-filled room, Howe sat hour after hour, speaking alternately into the private telephone which connected with Franklin D. Roosevelt in Albany and into the private phone which controlled the national convention.

Sunken eyes like holes burned in a blanket. Collarless, with the suspenders falling around his waist, solemn and almost sad, but with a smile now and then lighting up his melancholy countenance like a ray of sunshine in a dark corner, and finally the moment of victory, when he sat, all alone, talking to his friend and chief, too weary almost to offer congratulations, but producing from the sardonic humor of him these priceless words:

"Well, Frank, I guess I've worked myself out of a job."

In this hardboiled, cynical world, where most of the old standards seem to be caving in and most of the fine old sentiments perishing, I like to contemplate the steady, unselfish friendship of these two men, of Roosevelt the ambitious, and of Howe who wanted nothing—nothing except fame and glory for his friend.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

"You're beginning to look old," says a friend you have not seen in a long time.

You may smile pleasantly, but you don't like it.

It is far from cheerful, the thought that time is leaving its mark.

How different the effect of "You're looking fine—holding your age well, glad to see you."

The statement may not be the whole truth but it carries a thrill.

It provides incentive to raise the chin, set the shoulders back and get a bit of life into the eyes.

Yes, it adds elasticity to the step and enthusiasm to the voice.

It is natural to wish to live up to what our friends think we are.

There is an effort to merit the compliment, "you're looking younger."

If you are a stickler for the truth and you feel that you cannot tell a white lie to bolster up a sagging friend, certainly you need not be so blunt and tactless as to say—"you're looking old."

Sometimes it is a shock to see dear friends after many years.

Hair white luster gone from the eye and other signs of diminishing vigor, but be prepared for the worst and then these aging friends who reflect the times you both have suffered won't phase you.
